INFERNO AT GATES OF LENINGRAD

RUSSIANS MAINTAIN FIERCE DEFENCE

THE battle for Leningrad is reaching a crescendo of fury. With Russians and Germans hurling immense quantities of high explosives against each other, the scene was described in a Moscow message last night as "an inferno," says Reuter.

The German High Command yesterday claimed that "after strong German forces had broken into the fortified front of Leningrad, the close encirclement of the town is irresistibly continuing in spite of bitter resistance." They admitted that Colonel-General von Schobert, commanding one of their armies on the Eastern front, was killed on Friday.

The Red Fleet's Air Arm, however, is giving invaluable help on the Leningrad front, and no less valiant aid has been given by the Soviet Civil Guard, who have been standing shoulder to shoulder with the troops defending the city.

Following the recapture by the Russians of Yelnya, south-east of Smolensk, last week, the Red Army was reported yesterday to be fighting near Yartzevo, 27 miles north-east of Smolensk, on the Yaluga-Smolensk Railway, said Associated Press from Moscow last night. No details of the operations were yet available, but advanced units of the Red Army were believed to be within twelve miles of Smolensk.

A Helsinki despatch to Vichy reports that Field-Marshal Mannerheim is withdrawing Finnish troops from the sector north-west of Leningrad, in order to concentrate on Soviet Eastern Karelia, farther to the North.

COUNTER-ATTACKS BROKEN

Red Star, organ of the Red Army, reporting that the Germans were offering stiff resistance as the Soviet push continued, said that the Germans launched repeated counter-attacks over several days on one sector, but added that they were forced to retreat, leaving many dead, 40 tanks and six field guns behind.

Soviet artillery was reported to be shelling German positions around Smolensk which the Russians abandoned earlier in the campaign, but which they used to check the German offensive.

CIVIL DEFENDERS

Another message dealing with the Leningrad battle, said that so fierce has been the Civil Guards' resistance that in bayonet charges they have compelled the Germans to abandon a number of villages, and have withstood fierce attempts to dislodge them in counter-attacks. Under a hail of machine-gun fire they have been compelled to lie low in fields of mud, but they know that the weather is in their favour and that snow will soon blanket everything.

"Unfavourable weather" was reported by the German News Agency yesterday. The Agency claimed that, nevertheless, the Luftwaffe caused heavy damage south of Leningrad.

Italian war correspondents at the front also say that the campaign is now being fought in wintry weather.

"When we get up in the morning the tents are covered with white frost," writes the correspondent of Stampa, of Turin, while a front despatch to the Corriere Della Sera says: "Over the whole of the Eastern front the war has changed its aspect, losing all appearance of summer."

The Germans, hoping to reduce the support given by the Soviet Air Arm, also claimed to have made further attacks on Oesel, the Soviet base off Estonia.

ROME REPORT

A Rome message says that the claim that the Germans have beaten back a big Soviet counter-attack in the north-central sector of the front is made in a dispatch to the Italian News Agency. One of Marshal Timoshenko's armies, it is stated, was destroyed in the fighting, which is said to have taken place between Lake Ilmen and the Valdai heights, east of Velikiye Lugi.

A great battle, it is added, is raging east of Leningrad.

A Moscow message says that fierce fighting is still going on round Odessa, to which German and Rumanian forces laid siege five weeks ago. Twenty thousand Rumanians were killed in the first ten days of this month by the port's defenders, according to the newspaper Red Fleet. Thousands of men also were taken prisoners, besides tens of tanks and guns and hundreds of machine guns. Against stubborn resistance by Soviet troops, marines and sailors of the Black Sea Fleet, the German gains have been nil. Home Guard units, formed by 12,000 men and 70,000 youths, are helping to hold the front line round the city.

Strong formations of German dive bombers yesterday attacked fortifications on the Crimean isthmus, according to the German News Agency. It is claimed that gun emplacements and fields works were damaged. An aerodrome is also said to have been attacked. Other dive bombers, the Agency adds, attacked a heavy battery on an island in the Dnieper.

FINNISH MOVES

Field-Marshal Mannerheim, the Finnish Commander-in-Chief, has transferred most of his troops in the Karelian isthmus to the Karelian sector, north of Lake Ladoga, says a Helsinki despatch to the Vichy News Agency. Thus it seems that fighting in the isthmus is virtually at an end. The Finns' new objective, the despatch continues, is the conquest of Soviet Karelia. Field-Marshal Mannerheim is said to have promised this territory to Finland.

It is stated that most of the Finnish troops are advancing towards Petrosavodsk, on the western shore of Lake Onega, while the rest are tackling the Russians along the western bank of the River Svir, between Lakes Ladoga and Onega. The Finns a week ago claimed to have reached this area, which is about 150 miles north-east of Leningrad and 75 miles south-east of the former Soviet-Finnish frontier.

According to yesterday's despatch from Helsinki, the Finns have cut the Leningrad-Murmansk railway where it touches the River Svir, but are thirty miles from it further north. The Finns are stated to be trying to establish a continuous line along the Svir after occupying a few points on its banks. German and Finnish reinforcements have been brought up in the Salla region, in Northern Finland, where intense fighting has been resumed for Kandalaksha, at the head of the White Sea.

In the extreme north the Germans have launched an attack north-east of Petsamo with the aim of driving the Russians out of the fisherman's peninsula. Effective opposition by Soviet warships has so far frustrated this German move, says Reuter.

AT BAYONET-POINT

How Civil Guards holding a sub-sector of the front drove the Germans back at the bayonet point was told yesterday in a despatch to the Moscow Pravda. The Germans had advanced to the River "T" and occupied several hamlets. The Civil Guards' orders were to dislodge them. After Soviet artillery had prepared the way, silencing one opposing strong point after another, the Civil Guards moved up to the attack in the face of shelling and machine-gun fire that forced them to stick close to the mud in the rain-soaked ground. As they reached the German lines the Civil Guards charged with bayonets fixed. The Germans, it is said, faltered and retreated, and two villages were retaken.

A possible indication, says the Associated Press from Berlin, of German naval designs in the Black Sea was shown by a picture on the front page of the Voelkischer Beobachter yesterday of Admiral Raeder visiting "naval bases in the south-East." The Commander-in-Chief of the German Navy was shown conversing with the Bulgarian officers.

Manufacturers and retailers of skis and snowshoes in Germany were ordered yesterday to offer their stock to the nearest army ordnance offices. The sale of skis, snowshoes, ski-sticks and bindings, except to the Army, is forbidden.

The decree, appearing in the Berlin official gazette yesterday, reflects the preparations the German Army is making for the winter campaign in Russia.

BULGARIAN ACTION

The Bulgarian Cabinet has decided to call three classes of men to the colours. They are the 1921-2-3 groups, the 1921 group being called up to-day. The decree also embraces young men in those parts of Greece and Yugoslavia which have been yielded to Bulgaria.

This action by Bulgaria is, says Reuter, assumed to be directed against the Soviets, as it follows the strong protest made on Wednesday by the Soviet Foreign Commissar against the use by Germany of Bulgarian territory as a base for attacks on Odessa, the Crimea and the Caucasus.

SHOTS DURING BLACK-OUT

BELFAST WOMAN WOUNDED

Mrs. Jean Gault (44), of Ross street, Belfast, was admitted to the Royal Victoria Hospital on Saturday night, suffering from a bullet wound in the cheek. Police, it is understood, challenged two men during the black-out period for the production of their identity cards. Instead of complying, they ran away and escaped. As they ran they fired two shots from a revolver, one of which hit Mrs. Gault, who was returning home at the time. No arrests have been made yet in connection with the affair, and the police are carrying out a complete search of the district.

KING HAAKON'S MESSAGE TO NORWAY

King Haakon of Norway, broadcasting to his people last night, said: "Before your wireless sets are confiscated I beg you to behave with calmness and dignity—the hour of liberty may be nearer than we dare to believe—till we meet in free Norway."

The Germans were so afraid of the voice of truth, he said, that even listening to the radio was to be forbidden.

"Reports of ruthlessness and terror of the last days have filled us with sorrow and resentment."

The King added: "The shots fired in Oslo last Wednesday have created bitter anger among all free nations of the world."—(Press Association.)

SPECIAL TRADE UNION CONGRESS

As the Trade Union Bill has now passed through almost all its stages in the Oireachtas, the National Executive of the Irish Trade Union Congress has decided that a special conference of the executives of affiliated unions be summoned for Thursday, October 23rd, at the Mansion House.

The National Executive desires to ascertain the attitude of the unions towards the measure, and whether they are opposed to applying for negotiating licences.

"ALL-OUT" AID TO RUSSIA

Mr. Herbert Morrison, British Home Secretary and Minister of Home Security, said, at a National Council of Labour demonstration in London yesterday, that Britain had sent as many arms to Russia as was compatible with British safety.

"Here is a people's war, indeed," he said. "As a man of the people, I am filled with pride to see this display of fierce and self-sacrificing courage by a people in arms." It was an obligation of honour, as well as of self-interest, that Britain should use the lull afforded to the full, for Russia's sake as well as Britain's. The British Government was determined to do all that was possible. The way for the British people to match the total effort of Russia was to get down to it and produce still more arms.

LATE NEWS

RED ARMY LEAVES KREMENCHUG

MOSCOW, Monday. — The Soviet communiqué reports that the Red Army have abandoned Kremenchug, on the east bank of the Dnieper, 140 kilometres north of Dniepropetrovsk.

The communiqué reported that the Red Army continued its stubborn battles along the entire front throughout Sunday.

Kremenchug was abandoned after many days of fierce fighting.

In air battles on Friday the Soviet brought down 21 German 'planes and destroyed 46 on aerodromes, and 28 Soviet 'planes were lost. One German 'plane on patrol was brought down at the approaches to Moscow on Sunday.—(The Associated Press.)

DIPLOMATISTS TOLD TO GO

MORE GERMANS TO BE GIVEN UP

THE accredited members of the German, Italian, Hungarian and Rumanian Legation staffs have been ordered to leave Teheran on Tuesday. Informing the British Legation of this order, the Iranian Government also stated that a further trainload of Germans, who are being surrendered under the agreement between Iran and Britain and Russia, is expected to leave to-day.

SITUATION IN TEHERAN

Instructions to Germans throughout the country to report to the police immediately were broadcast by the Iranian radio on Saturday night. Arrangements are being made to remove from the Legation the 800 or so Germans who are at present camping in its grounds. They will be concentrated in barracks in Teheran.

The position at the moment regarding the expulsion of Germans from Iran, according to the Press Association Diplomatic Correspondent, is that 72 have gone in a train to Ahwaz, which is in the British zone, and eight to Kazvin, which is in the Russian zone. This is a first instalment, and is considerably less than the number was expected to be. Trains should have left Teheran on Friday night, but the German Legation seems to have done its best to obstruct the Persian authorities from fulfilling their undertakings.

"STIFFENING" WANTED

The German Minister at Teheran has employed every expedient in his repertoire to delay the departure of the Germans congregated in the Legation. On Friday night, when the train was due to leave, he told the Persian authorities that it was much too late to waken the sleeping deportees. On Saturday morning the train was held up while he said "good-bye" to each in turn. The position is that the Iranian Government are well-intentioned, but their administration is not too efficient, and a good deal of stiffening is required from British and Soviet quarters to enable them to get matters cleared up.

The Iranian Government have, however, with a little of this encouragement, dealt firmly in regard to the recent article in the Teheran paper Itteloat, which implied that the Government's diplomatic relations with the Axis Powers would remain intact, in spite of recent events. Although it is an open secret that this article was inspired by the Shah or his entourage, the newspaper was, nevertheless, closed down and the article repudiated on the Teheran wireless, control of which has now been taken over by the Iranian Government.

THE CROWN JEWELS

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

TEHERAN, Sunday.

A deputation, composed of Ministers and possibly some members of Parliament, is expected shortly to see the Shah in his summer palace in the mountains north of Teheran to discuss the question of domestic reforms. The reforms are believed to have been discussed at a secret session of the Iranian Parliament yesterday, and are being debated in a public session to-day. Ever since the British and Russian advance was completed, public opinion in Iran has been swelling into a strong demand for radical changes in the Government of the country and in the economic system, which has roughly trebled the cost of living during the past four years.

Another question which has aroused considerable public attention is the whereabouts of the Crown Jewels, recently alleged to have been sent out of Teheran. To-day it is rumoured here that the jewels have now been returned to the capital. Nevertheless, it is highly significant that such a delicate question can now be raised publicly.

In reply to a question during to-day's public session of Parliament concerning the whereabouts of the Crown Jewels, the acting Finance Minister stated that those jewels which form part of the note issue cover remained in the Treasury throughout the crisis. The remainder, he said, which are normally kept at the Gulistan Palace in Teheran, were removed to a bank while workmen were repairing a building next door.

These have now been returned to the palace, he added.

OPPOSITION TO NEW BANK CHARGES

Among the latest protests against the proposed increase in the charges for banking transactions are those made by the Council of the Dublin Solicitors' Bar Association and the Executive Council of the National Union of Wholesale Tobacco Distributors. At a meeting of the latter body it was suggested that the matter should be taken up with the Prices Commission.

When a resolution of protest was moved at the meeting of Mullingar Mental Hospital Committee, the proposer, Mr. M. Drum (Longford), suggested that the appropriate Minister should investigate the banking system, which, he said, was controlled by outside sources.

Instructions were given by Tuam Town Commissioners to send their protest to the Banks' Standing Committee and the Minister for Industry and Commerce.

BULGARIA ON WAR FOOTING

TURKS ANTICIPATE NO THREAT

THE Bulgarian Cabinet yesterday decided that conditions warrant the enforcement of the laws for civil mobilisation and for national defence.

The Minister of Justice issued a decree bringing into immediate effect the modifications recently made by the Bulgarian Parliament in the law governing national defence. These changes are directed to repressing all activities capable of injuring order and security of the State. They provide for the death penalty in all cases of sabotage and espionage and in serious profiteering offences.

The 1921 Army class will be called to the Colours to-day, and the 1922 and 1923 classes, other than students, will also be called up. This applies moreover to young men of serving age in the territories yielded to Bulgaria following the conquests of Greece and Yugoslavia, it is added.—(Reuter.)

SOVIET NOTE

M. Molotoff, Soviet Commissar for Foreign Affairs, on Wednesday handed to the Bulgarian Minister in Moscow for transmission to his Government a strong note of protest concerning Bulgaria's attitude to the Soviet Union and the use of Bulgarian territory by Germany as a base for attacks on Odessa, the Crimea and the Caucasus.

TURKEY READY

ANKARA, Sunday.—The warning given to Bulgaria by M. Molotoff is held here to justify the belief that Bulgaria's latest moves are directed against Russia rather than against Turkey. Turkish quarters feel that talk of an immediate Bulgarian threat to Turkey is due mainly to the presence here of Dr. Clodius, the German trade chief.

GERMAN DEMAND

Dr. Clodius is said to be pressing for the repair of the bridges on the railway line running from Istanbul to the Bulgarian border town of Svilengrad (Mustapha Pasha) as an essential preliminary to restoring German-Turkish trade.—(Reuter.)

MAY DASH TO SEA

ISTANBUL, Saturday—Identification marks on three crack Rumanian passenger steamers lying in Istanbul Harbour were painted out to-day, apparently in readiness for a dash through the Black Sea, possibly to share in a German sea attack in the rear of the Soviet lines. The three ships, all 7,000 tonners, have been sheltering in Istanbul since the Russian campaign started.—(Associated Press.)

BIG JUMP IN U.S. GUN PRODUCTION

WASHINGTON, Sunday. — The Army announced to-night that ten plants are now producing machine-guns, compared with two plants fourteen months ago. The output has risen 460 per cent. since August, 1940, it is added.—Reuter.

KING PETER'S VOW

King Peter of Yugoslavia has made a vow not to dance again until his country's freedom has been restored.

He disclosed this at Grosvenor House, London, yesterday, when he was the guest of the Officers' Sunday Club. He wore the uniform of a captain of the Yugoslav Air Force, and was attended by General Simovitch, his Prime Minister, and other members of the Yugoslav Government.

GERMAN SUPPLY SHIP SUNK

HEAVY AIR ATTACK ON BREST

AN attack by British carrier-borne naval aircraft on German supply ships off the Norwegian coast on Friday morning is described in a British Admiralty communiqué issued yesterday.

"Further successful action has been taken by the Royal Navy against the enemy's supplies and sea communications with his troops on the North Russian front," the communiqué says.

"At dawn on Friday carrier-borne naval aircraft attacked enemy shipping in the Bodo area, off the Norwegian coast, and military objectives in the vicinity. One enemy supply ship of about 2,000 tons was sunk and other ships were damaged. An aluminium works was hit and set on fire, and an electric power-station was also bombed.

BREST DOCKS RAIDED

R.A.F. Bomber Command aircraft on Saturday night straddled the dry docks at Brest, where German battle cruisers are lying. A "great weight of bombs" fell in the dock area. The docks at Le Havre were also bombed, and aerodromes in Northern France were attacked by fighters, who destroyed a 'plane coming in to land.

An Air Ministry communiqué issued at noon yesterday states:—

"Brest was heavily attacked last night by a large force of aircraft of Bomber Command. A great weight of bombs was dropped in the dock area, and bursts were seen to straddle the dry docks, in which the battle cruisers Scharnhorst and Gneisenau are lying.

"Other aircraft bombed the docks at Le Havre.

"Fighter Command aircraft, on offensive patrols over Northern France during the night, attacked several enemy aerodromes. An enemy aircraft coming in to land was destroyed. None of our aircraft is missing from these operations."

"The attack on Brest was made in the face of fierce opposition from the ground defences," states the Air Ministry News service. "Enemy fighters were also out to protect the harbour, in which the warships Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and the Prince Eugen are still lying after months of inactivity.

"On the way back from Brest one of our bombers met an enemy fighter, probably a Heinkel. Both the rear gunner and the captain saw it falling towards the sea in flames. The fighter came up from behind a blur of searchlights and fired a quick burst of tracer bullets.

"Nobody in the bomber was hurt, and the only damage caused was to the trailing aerial, which was shot away."

DARK-TO-DAWN ATTACK ON CONVOY

In a 24-hour night-and-day attack 'planes of the R.A.F. and Fleet Air Arm have shattered a strongly protected "Axis" convoy in the Mediterranean. Wave upon wave of aircraft dropped their bombs upon the convoy from Thursday night until daylight on Friday, probably sinking at least three merchant ships and inflicting heavy damage on others.

Diving low under cover of darkness, Air Arm 'planes swooped and struck two large ships. With the coming of dawn the R.A.F. took up the offensive, defying a barrage from six escorting destroyers to score bomb hits on two more of the six ships left in the convoy, and leaving one blazing from stem to stern.

On the same night Palermo Harbour, Sicily; a munitions factory, and Benghazi were raided. Four aircraft missing was the cost of these operations.

A German supply ship of 6,000 tons was sunk in the Mediterranean by a Dutch submarine, the Netherlands Admiralty announced on Saturday night.—(Press Association.)

AIR WAR IN THE MIDDLE EAST

THE COMMUNIQUES

LONDON, Sunday. — To-night's R.A.F. Middle East communiqué states: "Mediterranean.—The highly successful attack by aircraft of the Fleet Air Arm and the Royal Air Force on an enemy convoy in the Central Mediterranean, mentioned in yesterday's communiqué, continued during the night of September 12-13, when aircraft of the Fleet Air Arm located the remaining merchantmen and their destroyer escort approaching Tripoli. One medium-sized merchantman was hit, brought to a stand-still, and set on fire. Another vessel of the same size was also stopped, and clouds of black smoke were observed issuing from it. A third ship was possibly hit. Later during the same night the attack was continued by heavy bombers of the Royal Air Force. Two ships were left on fire and three others were hit. None of the ships in the convoy escaped damage.

MANY BOMBINGS

"Crete.—The landing grounds at Heraklion and Maleme were raided by heavy bombers of the Royal Air Force during the night of September 12-13. At Heraklion many bombs fell on the target. Fires and explosions were observed. Similar effective results of our bombing were seen at Maleme.

"Cyrenaica.—Aircraft of the South African Air Force attacked landing grounds at Gambut and Gazala during September 12. During the night of the 12th-13th Fleet Air Arm bombers raided Bardia and Gambut landing grounds. At Bardia fires broke out among dumps and stores, and at Gambut a direct hit was scored on one aircraft, and others were damaged. A large fire was started on the landing ground, where petrol containers were set ablaze."

"Sicily.—The aerodromes of Gerbini and Catania were again attacked during the night of September 12th-13th, when aircraft of the Fleet Air Arm machine-gunned dispersed aircraft and aerodrome buildings at both objectives.

"Abyssinia.—Aircraft of the Royal Air Force bombed enemy positions south of Gondar during September 13. From all these operations none of our aircraft is missing."

AT TOBRUK

The following communiqué was issued to-day from British G.H.Q., Cairo:—"Libya.—In the Tobruk area our fighting patrols made deep penetrations into enemy positions at a number of points without making contact. As a result of our activities, enemy shelling was particularly heavy against the eastern sector of the Tobruk defences."

Enemy bombing attacks during the night were continuous, but they resulted in no casualties and no important damage to material. In the frontier area enemy patrols, moving somewhat wider than usual, are being successfully engaged."—(Press Association.)

ITALIAN CLAIMS

ROME, Sunday.—To-day's Italian High Command communiqué says:—

"In Northern Africa, on the land front, lively activity of our artillery. During the night of September 12-13, in spite of violent enemy anti-aircraft fire, Italian 'planes dropped heavy calibre bombs on batteries, fortified positions, barracks and munitions dumps at Tobruk. Large fires and explosions were observed. At Bardia a British machine was shot down by German fighter.

"In East Africa, in the Colquhoun sector, a hospital station, visibly marked with a red cross, was bombed and machine-gunned. There were a few wounded. One bomber was brought down by our defences. During an attack on one of our convoys our naval anti-aircraft guns shot down four enemy 'planes. In the Eastern Mediterranean, in the course of an action against enemy shipping, our Air Force sank a small merchant ship."—(Reuter.)

DESTROYER HIT

The German communiqué says:—"In the East, as the result of the favourable progress of operations, the way is being cleared for a new successful battle. After strong German forces had broken into the fortified front of Leningrad, the close encirclement of the town is irresistibly continuing, in spite of bitter resistance.

"An enemy freighter was severely damaged by bomb hits south of the Faroe Islands yesterday. During the successful attack by the German Air Force on a convoy east of Great Yarmouth, reported in yesterday's High Command communiqué, a British destroyer was hit with a bomb of heavy calibre. In North Africa German bombers bombed during the night of September 12 and yesterday British anti-aircraft positions and camps around Tobruk.

"There was no enemy activity over German territory either by day or night. During the fighting on the Eastern Front on September 12 the Commander of an Army, Colonel-General von Schobert, was killed."—(Reuter.)

A NATIONAL REGISTER

IDENTITY CARDS FOR ALL

The Irish Times learns that the Government is about to introduce a scheme of national registration.

It is understood that arrangements are being made for the compilation of a register which will include every citizen in the country. The purpose is stated to be for use in the event of the extension of rationing, or, at least, to ensure the more equitable distribution of foodstuffs. The scheme is based on information and experience gained in an examination of a similar scheme in another country.

Thousands of enumerators, possibly members of the Garda Siochana and other services such as the Local Security Force, will soon begin the great task of collecting the information. It is expected that they will be afforded facilities to carry out the work as quickly as possible. The enumerators themselves will fill up the forms, a procedure which will differ somewhat from that of the Census, when the householder gave the information required. This will ensure greater expedition in carrying out the task—a task that would have to be carried through quickly if the information is to be of greatest use.

It is stated that coincidental with the compilation of the register identity cards will be issued to every person in the country.

NO CATTLE DISEASE CASES

There was no outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease reported yesterday.

FINLAND'S HOPE OF PEACE

DISCLOSURES BY MINISTER

M. VAINO TANNER, the Finnish Minister of Trade and Industry, declared, in a speech at Helsinki yesterday, that Finland had "good hopes of peace in the nearest future."

While denying that Finland intended to make a separate peace with Russia, M. Tanner emphasised that she was fighting a purely "defensive war" to secure her frontiers.

"To a great extent this aim has already been achieved," he said, "but our ultimate frontiers can only be decided at the coming peace congress. Before that there is no possibility of concluding peace with anybody."

Earlier, M. Tanner had said that Finland had no desire to become involved in the "trial of strength" between the Great Powers. "We are comrades in arms with Germany only by accident," he added. "Our war is solely Finland's concern."

M. Tanner said (according to the Finnish radio): "For Finland the war has turned out unexpectedly well. The former Finnish territory in its entirety—with the exception of Hangoe and the Fishers' Peninsula—is in our hands again. In many sectors we have advanced a considerable distance beyond our former frontiers. In two months the victorious Finnish armies have recaptured more than the Soviet Union was able to take in more than three months of war and in the ensuing dictated peace. Finland has thus taken back her own with interest.

AT MUCH COST

"But for both parties these two wars have been a bad business. They have been specially costly to the Soviet Union, but they have also cost Finland much. We have lost considerable property, and the population of the ceded territory has endured much suffering. During our previous war we had the pleasure of seeing our attitude understood by the whole world. We were also given material aid and equipment. Then our position was indeed simple and clear—our country had been attacked without cause and we were fighting alone.

"At the present moment the attitude of the rest of the world to Finland is not as direct and sympathetic as in the winter war. The reason is that we are on the same errand as one of the parties to the Great Power war—Germany. Our nearest neighbours are cool towards our war: the great democracies of the West show no understanding whatever.

UNCHANGED

"The fault is not ours," said M. Tanner. "Finland has not changed; she is the same democratic country, loving liberty and defending her independence as before. The Soviet Union has not changed either. She is still the same barbarous State, envying her neighbours their territory as before, though she now pretends to be a defender of liberty and a champion of democracy. But the rest of the world has changed."

He denied reports that there is a strong peace party in Finland, on behalf of which, with the aid of mediators, peace negotiations are alleged to have begun with the Soviet Union. "The purpose is plain," he said. "An attempt is being made to sow dissension among us, thus easing the military situation of the Soviet Union, both on the Leningrad front and in the Murmansk railway sector. From no quarter in Finland, or on Finnish initiative, have any such peace talks been begun abroad. We cannot have the slightest confidence in the present rulers of the Kremlin, who have broken all their previous agreements. For that matter, there is not the slightest doubt that the Soviet Union will lose the war with Germany."

FOR PEACE

"The Finnish nation in its entirety wishes for peace," M. Tanner went on. "We have never wanted warlike adventures. On the contrary, we have been led by force into war. So far the aims of our war have been purely military, but now that we have restored, in the main, our former frontiers, they are beginning to become political. Demands have appeared in the Press for a formulation of our aims by Parliament and the Government. It is obvious, however, that we cannot, while war is raging, let the enemy know whether we intend to stop or to advance further, and, if so, how far. That would be information too valuable to give the enemy. In one respect, however, our aims have been clearly formulated all along. Only by accident have we become comrades in arms with Germany. Our war is solely Finland's concern. We are not a party to the great war being fought out in the world, nor do we wish to become involved in that trial of strength between Great Powers. We shall not continue the war longer than our interests demand. Our long frontier against Russia, however, is still insecure, and it is positively essential that we should render it safe in a military sense. Our ultimate frontiers can be decided only at the coming Peace Congress. Before that there is no possibility of concluding peace with anybody."

"The Finnish people," he concluded, "will thus do their duty in the war, but hope, at the same time, that the game will end as soon as possible. Peace-time duties on a great scale await us."

Narrowly missing houses, an R.A.F. 'plane crashed in Stratford-on-Avon on Saturday, and burst into flames not far from Shakespeare's home. There were no civilian casualties.

NEW ATTACK ON A U.S. SHIP

President Roosevelt Seeking Information

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, cruising in Chesapeake Bay with his defence advisors, yesterday sought further information of an attack on another American ship.

A brief report to the State Department from the United States Legation in Cairo said that the Arkansas, trading between the United States and the Red Sea, was damaged during an air raid on Suez on Thursday.

Meantime, the United States Navy, speeding up its building programme, announced that another new battleship, the 35,000 tons Massachusetts, would be launched on September 23, and it is expected to be commissioned as the fleet's nineteenth capital ship seven months ahead of programme. She has been built without portholes, to save building time and to add structural strength.

NOISE AT CRITICS' MEETING

There were signs yesterday of impatience against critics of President Roosevelt's "shoot first policy." At Milwaukee several disturbances occurred during an American Legion meeting, at which Senator Bennett Champ Clark and Congressman Hamilton Fish denounced President Roosevelt as a warmonger.

TURKISH PAPERS' VIEWS

ASSOCIATED PRESS.

ISTANBUL, Saturday (delayed).

The Istanbul Press finds President Roosevelt's speech just short of a declaration of war.

"This is not the speec of a nation which will be peaceful for long," the moderate Aksam declared.

Other papers had pungent comment, like the pro-British Vatan's: "It appears that in self-defence Mr. Roosevelt has discovered an entirely new name for war."

MORE LEASE-AND-LEND FOR BRITAIN

WASHINGTON, Sunday.

When Congress reassembles to-morrow after a month's vacation President Roosevelt is likely to make a request for new appropriations, probably totalling 5,000,000,000 dollars (about £1,250,000,000) for aid to Britain and other States fighting Hitler.

It is thought that this request would follow the President's second accounting to Congress of the expenditure of $7,000,000,000 (about £1,750,000,000) under the Lease and Lend Fund.—(Reuter.)

President Roosevelt's first Lease and Lend report was presented on June 11, when he said that all but about $2,750,000,000 (about £687,500,0000) had been allocated.

The first business of the House of Representatives to-morrow will be the $3,584,000,000 (about £896,000,000) Tax Bill.—(Reuter.)

U.S. SHIP DAMAGED IN RAID ON SUEZ

WASHINGTON, Sunday.

The State Department to-night was awaiting further details of the circumstances in which the U.S. steamer Arkansas was damaged during a raid on Suez on Thursday night. The Arkansan, a vessel of 6,997 tons, and flying the American flag, was operating between the United States and the Red Sea.

Her plates are reported to have been pierced by what the U.S. Legation in Cairo described as "shell fragments," but the message came from an official who was neither a naval nor a military expert, and it was pointed out by the State Department that the fragments have been those of a bomb. There were no casualties.—(Reuter.)

"UNITED STATES AT WAR"

NEW YORK, Sunday.

"The general feeling here this week-end is that for the eighth time in her history, and the second time this century, the United States of America is at war," says the New York Times Washington Correspondent to-day.

Opinion in the capital, he declares, is finally convinced that President Roosevelt is in earnest. "The so-called great debate in Congress," he adds, "has been shelved for the moment. The attempt to win the war without fighting has been abandoned."—(Reuter.)

TIME BOMBS IN ZAGREB

MANY PEOPLE INJURED

ASSOCIATED PRESS.

ZAGREB, Sunday.

Four time-bombs exploded to-day in Zagreb's Central Telephone Exchange, injuring a major in the German Army and thirteen other persons, while six Croat soldiers were wounded by machine-gun fire in an eastern section of the city.

The first time-bomb was placed in the building of the Post Office, and went off at mid-day, followed by three other blasts. The explosions crippled Zagreb's telephonic system, and there are no indications when communications will be restored.

Major Moehring, of the Signal Corps, was wounded in the head. The local chief of the Croatian Ustachi organisation was injured in the leg, and later had to have the limb amputated.

A German lieutenant, four German soldiers, a German telephone operator and six Croats were also hurt.

German sources claimed that Communists were responsible.

In an eastern section of Zagreb six Croatian sentries were found wounded in the street as the result of machine-gun fire from a roof-top. A search of neighbouring houses has begun, and the radio announced a 9 p.m. curfew. Soldiers and police patrolled the streets to prevent anyone leaving the city without credentials.

INDIA WANTS A CLEAR PLEDGE

BOMBAY, Sunday.

In a statement on Mr. Churchill's references to India in his recent speech in the House of Commons, Sir Tej Badahur Sapru, the Indian Liberal Leader, says that it must be clear by now that attempts by Mr. Amery and Lord Linlithgow to carry Indian opinion with them are a complete failure.

"It has become abundantly plain in the last few months that the real trouble lies, and will lie, in getting British statesmen to pledge themselves to define the basis of the relationship between England and India in clear and unambiguous language.

"It is even now not too late, he concludes for Mr. Amery and Lord Linlithgow to impress on His Majesty's Government that the time has come when H.M. Government should make up its mind courageously to tell us whether we are going to be treated as a dependency in future, or to be fed upon pledges circumscribed, as they always are, by cautious reservations which may mean anything or nothing."

FINAL NOTICE
TO DOMESTIC USERS OF KEROSENE (PARAFFIN OIL).

The Minister for Supplies desires to remind domestic users of Kerosene that under the above Order no person may purchase by retail or acquire Kerosene at any licensed shop unless such person is registered as a Kerosene customer at such shop. The allocation of supplies to retailers will be related to the number of their registered customers, and every domestic user should, therefore, take immediate steps to register with his normal retailer. Supplies may not be available for any domestic user not registered with a retailer by the 30th September, 1941.

A domestic user means a person who is the occupier of premises (not being premises with which a supply of gas or electricity is connected) consisting of any dwelling-house or part of a dwelling-house let separately. Not more than one person may register in respect of any one set of premises as defined.

WARNING.

Heavy penalties are prescribed for registration with more than one retailer.

JOHN LEYDON, Secretary.

Department of Supplies, Dublin, 15th September, 1941.

EMERGENCY POWERS (KEROSENE RATIONING) (No. 2) ORDER, 1941.

FINAL NOTICE
TO KEROSENE (PARAFFIN OIL) RETAILERS.

The above Order provides that on and after the 25th August, 1941, no person shall purchase for resale by retail any Kerosene unless he is the holder of a Kerosene retailer's licence. The Minister for Supplies desires to give notice that the issue of retailers' licences will be discontinued after the 30th September, 1941 and applications for licences received after that date will not be entertained. Any person, therefore, who desires to sell Kerosene by retail should apply immediately for a licence. Application, which must be made on the prescribed form obtainable at any Post Office, must be forwarded to the Department of Supplies, Ballsbridge, Dublin, accompanied by the prescribed fee.

JOHN LEYDON, Secretary.

Department of Supplies, Dublin, 15th September, 1941.

Notice to Licensed Kerosene (Paraffin Oil) Retailers

To ensure an allocation of Paraffin Oil for domestic users in October each licensed Kerosene retailer should immediately inform the Department of Supplies, Ballsbridge, Dublin, in writing, of the number of domestic users registered with him. Any licensed retailer failing to furnish this information may be left without supplies for his registered customers. The serial number of the licence should be quoted.

WARNING.

Any licensed retailer furnishing false or misleading information renders himself liable to severe penalties, including cancellation of his licence.

JOHN LEYDON, Secretary.

Department of Supplies, Dublin, 15th September, 1941.

Apprentice Riders Shine at Baldoyle

BY winning the Baldoyle Steeplechase on Saturday Mr. A. D. Comyn's Brown Admiral scored his tenth victory inside a period of twelve months, a feat which very few, if any, steeplechasers have accomplished. The opposition on this occasion was by no means strong, and the only danger to him was removed when Knight of Killala came to grief at half-way. T. Hyde, rider of the latter, made a gallant effort to keep on his back, but eventually was thrown, and received a shaking. As usual, Brown Admiral made his own running, and his success was never in doubt.

Sammy's Rock and Coupe de Maitre, the two best fancied horses for the Nursery Handicap, disappointed badly, neither ever holding out any hopes for their backers, and for a long way the outsider, Experto Crede, looked like winning. After four furlongs his bolt was shot, and then China Tealeaf took command, and successfully held off the late challenge of Lull, who was running with great dash in the closing stage. The winner is owned by Mr. J. G. McKenna, of Armagh, and is trained by Mr. B. Nugent.

Backers were more on the mark when they made Phelim Brady and Warthrift joint favourites for the Mooresfort Plate. The former was well placed all through, but failed to cope with Warthrift when the latter challenged. Mr. B. Kerr's colt was ridden by the apprentice, E. Newman, who earlier in the day had scored on Swift Eagle in the Howth Plate. There was a splendid finish for this race, in which The Little Wench and Carnmid were the others concerned, two necks dividing the three as they passed the judge's box. Newman was seen to distinct advantage on the winner.

Another favourite to disappoint was Red Sale, who, in the Sutton Hurdle, never appeared with a winner's chance. Derk for a long way was prominent, but when tackled close home by St. Marnock and Melmoon had nothing in reserve, and St. Marnock's final effort was delivered at the right moment to gain a short head victory. He, too, was ridden by an apprentice, J. Lynott.

Four of the overnight declared runners for the Kinsealy Plate were missing from the field, including Pongo. Mr. W. Willis, who rode the latter at Naas, now had the mount on Scotch King, his own property, and scored easily from the well-bred Isara. Details:—

Opening Heats of Irish Derby

She's Tidy, Ruby Border and The Thaw won their heats of the Irish Derby at Shelbourne Park on Saturday. The first-named ran a clever race to beat the odds-on favourite, Roeside Ilene, but Ruby Border was a rather lucky winner, as there was a lot of bumping, and one to suffer was Brilliant Teddy, on whom odds of 5 to 2 on were laid. The Thaw justified favouritism by winning in easy fashion from the outsider, Good Docket. She's Tidy returned the fastest time—30.49 secs. Details:—

Egan Ends Season in Peak Form

BY OUR LAWN TENNIS CORRESPONDENT.

AFTER maintaining an exceptionally high standard of play for the greater part of the summer, C. A. Kemp has passed the peak of his game for this year, and he could win no more than six games in three sets off R. F. Egan in the Irish close championship final at Elm Park on Saturday.

Kemp's all-out attack is always more likely to break down than Egan's machine-like equipment of ground shots, which are seldom hit at more than half pace, and the loser on Saturday contributed an abnormal proportion of points to his opponent by errors. Apart from one moment at the start of the first set, when Kemp went from 0-2 to 3-2, there was only one man in it.

Even though she lost her Irish Open title to Miss Mary Nichols, Miss Dodo Curley has retained her position as the leading singles player here, her win over Miss Nichols last week being her third open tournament success, whereas none of her rivals has won more than once. Few players, especially women, can take such a hammering in the early part of the match and remain so completely unaffected by it as Miss Curley. For five games she could do nothing but stand and admire her opponent's drives flashing past her, but she saved the sixth game from love-40, before losing the set 6-2.

From the start of the second set she began to pick up those searing drives of Miss Nichols which had previously been outright winners, and the latter, in striving for more pace still, commenced to find the net. Miss Curley had nothing to spare in levelling the sets, and it was tooth-and-nail for a time in the third, but when leading 3-2 Miss Nichols took a heavy fall and could not settle down afterwards. This was a stroke of ill-luck, but, in what would certainly have been a close finish, Miss Curley's sounder methods might have told in any case.

With Kemp unable to dominate the court, as he has done so frequently in men's doubles this season, he and E. H. Maynard never seemed likely to worry Egan and A. E. Fannin in a match which produced nothing out of the ordinary.

The consistently clever base-line play of Miss Poole was once again rewarded in the women's doubles final, in which she and Miss Lombard defeated Mrs. Myerscough and Mrs. Lister with surprising ease, superb lobbing, combined with Miss Lombard's steady driving of low trajectory, broke down the volleying attack of the lovers, and the Lansdowne pair certainly gave a very fine display.

The semi-finals and final of the mixed doubles will take place to-day and to-morrow. Results:—

The afternoon was perfect for sailing, and no less than 50 yachts and sailboats started in the five races. Association Football
Home Teams Start Well in The Shield

ONLY one home team—Shamrock Rovers—failed to win in the first series of matches in the Shield competition over the week-end. Again scoring was pretty high at all the venues, eight goals being scored at Cork, six at Milltown and Crumlin, and five at Bray and Dalymount.

Although they failed to win, Shamrock Rovers made a wonderful recovery, and from being three goals down shortly after the start of the second half, they managed to force a draw.

The other home team all had comparatively easy victories.

Results and scorers:—

Shamrock Rovers 3, Dundalk 3. Foy, Farrell and Cochrane for Rovers; Kelly, Lavery and Grice for Dundalk.

Cork United 5, Limerick 3. McCarthy (3), O'Reilly and O'Neill for Cork; Byrne (2) and Hartery for Limerick.

St. James's Gate 4, Shelbourne 2. Ward (2), O'Rourke and Bonner for St. James's Gate; Kennedy and Bradshaw for Shelbourne.

Bray Unknowns 4, Drumcondra 1. Dunne (2), McIntyre and Dempsey (penalty) for Bray; O'Brien for Drumcondra.

Bohemians 5, Brideville 0. Morris, Fullen (2), McGrane and Downes scored.

ROVERS FIGHT BACK

One would have to tax his memory to recall a finer or more exciting match than that which kept the huge crowd at Milltown in tense excitement until Mr. Dwyer used the whistle for the last time. Just before he did so Dundalk were attacking fiercely, and a terrific drive went flying across the goal. In the surging mass it was impossible to recognise the marksman, but it was one of the great moments in a really remarkable game.

Dundalk up to the interval had been weaving fantastic patterns through the Rovers' defence. Their forwards, playing the most orthodox of soccer, passed and re-passed with bewildering accuracy; their half-backs—particularly Donnelly and Lunn—co-ordinated with them with telling effect, and the full backs were the personification of coolness and resoluteness. It was no wonder that at the interval they were two clear, and Rovers were fortunate that the margin was not wider. The way seemed easy for Dundalk, who seemed set for one of the most decisive victories achieved by any XI. over a Rovers' team.

Then came the most complete transformation imaginable. Rovers changed their tactics. For ten minutes they adopted the Dundalk methods, and kept the ball top-spinning over the fast turf. The visitors' defence wavered; O'Neill and Crawley had lost their speed and power of the first half. Suddenly Jimmy Dunne revised the plan. With strong overhead flicks, punting and deft passes to Cochrane, he set the pace hot. The hint was taken by his partners and half-backs. Grice had made it 3-0 with a header which Twomey dropped, the ball going over the line, and the fate of Rovers appeared to be quite definitely sealed. Rovers, however, had discovered a glaringly weak link in the Dundalk team and proceeded to sever it. The Dundalk backs faltered, and it came as no surprise when a tremendous drive off the penalty line by Foy made it 3-1.

After thirty minutes Matier brought off a great save—one of many—from Farrell, but immediately the home inside-left got the ball again and banged it past the Dundalk goalkeeper. Four minutes from the end Cochrane shot past Matier for the equalising goal.

So long as Dundalk were allowed to play their customary game they were all over their opponents, but when the Rovers threw finesse to the wind, and put all they had in the way of speed into it, it was a horse of a different colour. Dundalk faded out of the picture; Clarke, Healy, Doherty, Bryson and Molloy had their measure in full.

It was a great recovery by the Rovers. They might have won. Had Matier not brought off a glorious save from a penalty kick taken by Bryson twenty-four minutes after the kick-off the points probably would have gone to the home team, which badly needed a stimulant, as it were, at that stage. That save was one of the outstanding features of a match crammed with features, many of which were provided by the goalkeepers. It was a tremendously fast, keen and exciting game, played in the sporting spirit by two well-balanced and excellent teams, in which every one of the twenty-two played his part with distinction.

THE "GATE" WIN

At Iveagh Grounds yesterday Shelbourne were unsuccessful in their attempt to register their fourth away win, when St. James's Gate defeated them in the League of Ireland Shield 4-2. The standard of play, except for brief periods in the second half, was below what was expected.

Shelbourne included Ross (ex-Cork United) at right-full-back, but he never seemed to settle down. No blame could be attached to McCarthy for the four shots that beat him, and Fallon played a grand game. The two former Gate players, Bradshaw and Kennedy, and Keely were the pick of the Shelbourne attack; in fact, at times in the second half we saw the old Bradshaw, with all his guile and craft.

Murtagh was safe in goal for the Gate, while Thompson was brilliant at back. The half-backs were all good, and among the forwards Bonnar was best, although Ward and O'Rourke also played well.

Play opened with O'Rourke missing a "sitter" from ten yards, and just afterwards Radford, from 25 yards, sent in a hot shot which Murtagh held on the line. After five minutes Bonnar and Smith worked the ball into the centre for Ward to open the Gate's account. Ten minutes later Cummins nipped in as Thompson was passing back to Murtagh, but skied his shot over the bar. Play switched around, and McCarthy brought off a magnificent save, diving full length to a shot from Rogers. In the thirty-fifth minute Shelbourne nearly got the equaliser when Radford centred, and Noonan almost headed into his own goal.

Seven minutes after the resumption Bradshaw waltzed around O'Reilly and Thompson, and from his pass Kennedy drove home the equaliser. Both goals then had close shaves, Bradshaw narrowly missing and Rogers putting inches wide. Fifteen minutes later Bonnar sent in a beautiful centre, and Ward nodded it past McCarthy. Up to this Shelbourne were playing grand football, but the wind was taken out of their sails completely when, in the thirty-third minute, Rogers, from close in, hit the upright, Ward hitting the goalkeeper from the rebound, and from the second rebound O'Rourke made it 3-1. Four minutes later Bradshaw dived full length between the fulls, to score a great goal with his head; but two minutes afterwards Bonnar made the issue safe when the scored from close range.

CORK HALF-BACKS IN FORM

Cork United won their Shield game against Limerick by 5-3 at the Mardyke. It was not as close a match as the margin would suggest, Cork being the better side at all stages and winning easily enough. Cork held a decided advantage at midfield, their halves being much the stronger trio. It was here that the foundations of their success were laid, their forwards getting a fine service of passes, with the result that the Limerick defenders were rarely out of difficulties. The visitors were splendidly served by Harrington in goal, his saves including a penalty taken by O'Reilly. Their forwards were led in fine style by Byrne, who scored two goals, and Hartery and Drain also were in good form.

Foley, in goal for Cork, was very sound, Duffy being the better of the fulls and McKenna of the halves. The best of the forwards were McCarthy, who scored three, and McFarlane. O'Reilly opened the scoring for Cork after 10 minutes' play, and 20 minutes later McCarthy added a second. Before the interval Hartery reduced the lead, but early in the second half McCarthy and O'Neill added goals for Cork. In the closing stages Byrne reduced the arrears, and, after McCarthy had added Cork's fifth, Byrne scored again for Limerick.

POINTS FOR BRAY

The small gathering of spectators at Bray yesterday witnessed very little good football in the Bray Unknowns and Drumcondra match, which Bray won by 4-1. Probably due to the fact that they were without Hutchinson and Doherty, Drumcondra never gave a glimpse of their best form, with the result that Bray monopolised the play; in fact they should have won by a more convincing margin.

The inclusion of Gorman, the former St. James's Gate player, improved the Bray defence, and he and Feenan struck up a perfect understanding. At half-back Murphy held McNamara in subjection until the latter sustained a foot injury, which forced him to change places with Dyer in the second half. The best of the home forwards were the wingers, Doran and Carroll.

The absence of Hutchinson and Doherty may have made all the difference to Drumcondra, as Martin and Kenny, who deputised, were weak in defence. The forwards got few opportunities until the closing stages, when they over-used the ball.

The scorers for Bray, who led by 2-0 at the interval, were Dunne (2), McIntyre and Dempsey from a penalty for "hands" against Walsh. Late in the game O'Brien scored for Drumcondra.

GREAT GOALKEEPING

Against Bohemians on Saturday at Dalymount Park, Brideville had Brownlow, late of Linfield and Distillery, at centre-forward, and Finlay, Linfield's former inside-left, in his usual position, while Fullen took M. O'Flanagan's place at centre-forward in the amateurs' team. Brideville's forwards played some excellent football, combining cleverly; indeed, they did everything but score, and that they were so heavily beaten was in large measure due to the oftentimes brilliant goalkeeping of Landers, who stopped shots that would have left him standing had it been one of his "off days." The visitors, however, took too long to settle down. Inside fifteen minutes they were three in arrear.

It was not a convincing exhibition that the winners gave. There was a lot of high, aimless kicking fore and aft, which got them nowhere. Too often the backs punted right into the Brideville defence, and that the forwards beat Webster five times was attributable not so much to the openings made for them by their half-backs as to obvious shortcomings in the Brideville defence from goal to centre half-back. It was a distinctly moderate-class game, with the amateurs on top all the time. One player stood out by himself in the home forward line. Fullen, who put what dash there was into the attack, and that was not much.

IRISH TEAM BEATEN AT BELFAST

The Irish XI were beaten 4—1 by a strong Army team at Windsor Park, Belfast, on Saturday. For 45 minutes Ireland held their own, and Martin, beating Swift, scored for the home side; but before the interval the Army team, which included English and Scottish internationals, were 2 up, Hagan getting both goals. In the second half the Army XI asserted itself, and Mercer and Hagan scored. A crowd of 30,000 saw the game, and the receipts were £1,660.

IRISH LEAGUE TEAM

Breen (Belfast Celtic); Young (Arsenal and Glentoran), Fulton (Celtic), Walker, Vernon (Celtic), Brolly (Linfield); Thompson (Leicester City and Linfield), McKennan (Partick Thistle and Glentoran), Martin (Glentoran), McAlinden (Belfast Celtic), James Kelly (Derry City). Reserve—Llumby (Distillery).

Rugby Club Practices

THE majority of the Dublin senior clubs were engaged in practice games on Saturday, and there were quite large turn-outs at the various grounds. Lansdowne road was a particularly busy venue; some forty Lansdowne players and over thirty players from Wanderers took part in the practices.

A. B. Robertson will again captain Wanderers, and with him on Saturday were C. Fox, the vice-captain; T. K. Horan, L. N. Horan, C. R. Graves, F. Cruise, C. Sugrue, J. A. Mattson, F. Cruise, N. B. Taylor and G. W. McGibney. Many new members also took part, and prominent among them may be mentioned R. Beaumont, a forward, who last season played with Instonians. The opening match will be against Monkstown on Saturday week.

Lansdowne had two brisk "twenty-fives," and among those noticed were C. Murphy, R. Mitchell, T. Sinnott, J. Murray, J. Crowley, O. Murray, D. Cosgrave, F. Cosgrave, H. Egan, P. Delaney and A. Devanney. R. Power, the hockey international, a newcomer to the Rugby game, has joined Lansdowne, and he took part in the practice at centre three-quarter. The opening match will be against St. Mary's College on Saturday week.

Donnybrook was another busy centre, and Bective Rangers and Old Wesley had a good many players out. The Rangers have a host of new members, and mention may be made of Des. O'Neill, the schools' interprovincial and Clongowes College forward. A. O'Meara will captain the side, which will open the season on Saturday week with a match against Palmerston.

C. E. Polden, who had been elected to captain Old Wesley, has gone to England, and D. E. J. Glenn has been chosen in his place. There was a big muster, and with the majority of last season's players again to the fore, and many promising schoolboys having come along, the prospects are quite good. The opening match will be against Monkstown on October 4th.

Old Belvedere, the cupholders, will not have the services of G. J. Morgan, P. J. Quinn and D. O'Brien, but all the other members of last season's cup-winning team are available, and there was a big turn-out for practice on Saturday. J. Belton will captain the side, and the opening game will be against Dublin University on October 4th.

Blackrock College have lost the services of their international players, L. B. McMahon and P. L. Crowe; but otherwise the side will be pretty much the same as last season. Some thirty players were engaged at practice, and the most prominent were J. C. Ferris, who will be captain; T. Chamberlain, M. J. Delaney, K. Keenan and T. Kenny. Clontarf will form the opposition for the opening match on Saturday week.

University College have got to business earlier than usual, and they had a practice on Saturday. Palmerston, Clontarf and St. Mary's College also had very satisfactory practice games. D. Ryan will captain College, and among those out were T. Headon, D. Hingerty, E. Lanigan, C. Murray, C. Nolan and D. O'Sullivan.

Limerick Heavily Defeated

CORK .... 8-10 LIMERICK 3-2

Cork qualified for the All-Ireland hurling final on 28th September when they easily defeated Limerick at Cork Athletic Grounds yesterday. The game was disappointing in so far as Cork were so superior in all departments that they were masters of the play from beginning to end. At half-time Cork had a lead of 5-3 to 1-0, and in the second half they continued to have the better of matters.

DUBLIN QUALIFY

DUBLIN .... 2-5 GALWAY 2-2

Dublin defeated Galway in the All-Ireland hurling semi-final at Roscrea. Dublin, who were much the faster, opened with a series of raids, and A. O'Brien flashed over the opening point. Galway had a spell of attack, but Forde, in the Dublin goal, made excellent saves. Then Dublin broke away, and Wade goaled. Galway had their first score after 28 minutes' play from Ford, and the half-time score stood 1-1 to 0-1.

Galway opened the second half with polished hurling, but a Dublin attack resulted in a point from Boyle, followed by a further point from Terry Leahy. Following a free, Downes had a goal for Dublin. L. Connaire replied for Galway with a goal. Wade added Dublin's next score, to which Loughnane replied for Galway. O'Brien added the final score for Dublin, placing the issue beyond doubt.

Minor Hurling Final.—Galway 5-1, Leix 4-3.

"CÆSAR AND CLEOPATRA"

While the forthcoming production of Shaw's "Cæsar and Cleopatra" at the Gaiety will not be the first performance of the play in this country, it is being planned on the most ambitious scale ever attempted in this country.

Cricket
The Rest too Strong For Leinster

The Rest of the League defeated the champion club, Leinster, by 7 wickets, at Rathmines yesterday. On a good wicket, Leinster gave a disappointing batting display. Apart from Lambert, who hit six 4's in a somewhat streaky innings of 40, nobody showed the slightest enterprise, and most of them were painfully slow. By contrast, after the Rest had lost Murray and D'arcy for 20, Waldron and F. Quinn batted brilliantly and got 119 runs in not long over an hour. They scored on each side of the wicket, and gave a moderate attack little hope of getting them out, until, with five runs to go, Murphy bowled Waldron around his legs. Score:—

PIGOT'S SIX OFF VERITY

Playing for Mr. Entwistle's XI. against an Army XI., which included the Test players Verity and N. W. D. Yardley, at Muckamore, the Phoenix player, D. R. Pigot, scored 39, and, although missed on a couple of occasions, hit a 6 and a 4 in successive overs from Verity. The Army lost four wickets for 14, but Yardley, who hit nine fours in 68, and Lieutenant K. J. Andrews (51) put on 120 runs without further loss. J. C. Boucher bowled well, but was used for only four overs. The match ended in a draw.

AMERICA HAS ITS SHORTAGES
SUGAR, BUT NO SPICE

In recent months we have been lamenting about the shortage of many commodities in Ireland, and the majority have been looking towards America as the land of plenty.

Now, however, American newspapers are commenting on the shortages in that country—there has been an appeal for the saving of waste paper, another for scrap metal; a dry-cleaning firm has been offering small boys a few cents for collecting the wire coat-hangers on which clothes are sent home from the cleaners.

From the New Yorker, too, we learn that many "trimmings" which used to be imported into the United States from Europe have gone short. Stuffing the turkey this year is going to be quite an expensive business, because sage has risen from seven cents a lb. to $1.35, an increase of 2,000 per cent. The goat-herds of Yugo-Slavia used to gather it in their spare time, but even if they have any spare time now they have no chance of shipping the sage. The famous sagebrush, which grows prolifically in Western America, is useless, and a sage grown in California is too insipid to be used.

Saffron, a vital ingredient of French bread and rolls and several other dishes, is "out" too. It is derived from the crocus sativus which flourishes in Southern Europe; 14,000 flowers yield about an ounce of saffron. The plant probably could be grown in America, says the New Yorker, but the thought of paying American labour to pick 14,000 flowers for one ounce of saffron is a little staggering.

Poppy-seed rolls have fewer poppy-seeds these days, and carraway seeds have virtually vanished; both were imported from Holland. There will be no more Marjoram, which was grown in France, after present stocks are exhausted. The situation in Greece has cut off the supply of bay leaves—"indispensable to dill pickles and pickled herring." American wholesalers have enough pepper to last for a couple of years, but the price has already gone up from three to seven cents a lb.

Cayenne pepper (from West Africa) and cloves (from Zanzibar) are in good supply, but thyme (ex France) is out of the question. A six months' supply of bay leaves, sage and thyme—the last to be got in the South European market—was lost in April when the freighter carrying it was dive-bombed outside the harbour of Piræus.

So America feels the war-time shortages, too!

L.S.F. MANOEUVRES OVER BIG AREA

High-explosive bombs from raiding aircraft, incendiary bombs, fires and demolished dwellings were in evidence yesterday afternoon in the Rathfarnham District Command of the Local Security Force field exercises. The area covered during the exercises extended from the Featherbed Mountain to the Three Rock Mountain and down to the Dodder at Rathfarnham, which includes a large residential section and some hilly country, so that a great deal of rough going was encountered as the defenders sought out raiding parachutists.

The L.S.F. had four groups in action, assisted by armed L.D.F. units and units of the St. John Ambulance Brigade and the Red Cross. Communications were kept up by a motor cycle squad, assisted by Boy Scouts.

High-explosive and incendiary bombs dropped, causing craters in roads, fires, burst water-mains, and damage to dwelling-houses. Two houses were supposed to be destroyed by a crashing aircraft. These items were dealt with efficiently by the various units, but great ingenuity was displayed by the members of the force in discovering, shadowing and arresting invaders, though some of these were able to carry out their designs.

The movements were carried through with little loss of time and a great deal of public interest was aroused. Umpires expressed the greatest satisfaction with the way the members of the force carried out instructions and the manner in which contact was maintained all over the area.

Those directing the exercises were Mr. Dermot O'Clery, Director of Exercises, Rathfarnham District Command, L.S.F.; Mr. R. Mongan, District Leader; Mr. D. Manning, General Umpire; General Murphy, Deputy Commissioner, Civic Guards; Assistant Commissioner Carroll, Chief Superintendent Quinn, Superintendent Mooney and Superintendent Casserley.

THE LESSON OF THE WAR
HARNESSING OUR RESOURCES
MR. AIKEN'S TRIBUTE TO THE FARMERS

MR. FRANK AIKEN, Minister for the Co-ordination of Defensive Measures, urged saving of fuel and the avoidance of waste of all kinds when he addressed the North Louth Comhairle Ceanntair of Fianna Fail, in Dundalk yesterday.

The Minister said he hoped every farmer would do his utmost to save every ear of corn in the best condition, and see that none of it was wasted or damaged. During the period of wasteful economy, from 1918 to a year or two before the present war, wasteful habits were acquired. Under the scourge of war conditions and the real scarcity of the essentials of life he hoped they would learn the lesson for permanent application that "every mickle makes a muckle," and waste of any kind was an offence against nature, for which offenders some day paid dearly.

Whatever happened during this war or after it, he expected they would have learned their lesson, and that they would make the firm resolve to keep it, to utilise all their resources of men and material for the production and distribution of all the native resources which were necessary to give the population, in all circumstances, the highest possible standard of cultural life and a healthy standard of physical comfort.

RESPONSE OF THE FARMERS

Mr. Aiken said that at the moment the country was facing many problems connected with the maintenance of its neutrality and a fair standard of life for all the people. They could safely rely on the fine men in the Army and Local Forces to do all in their power, with the weapons at their disposal, to resist aggression. He hoped that they would never be called upon to do so. In regard to food, he felt that farmers would give the same magnificent response in the coming season. They had shown that they could, and were willing, to produce the foodstuffs that the nation required, and they deserved to be adequately rewarded and protected permanently against unfair competition in the carrying out of their fundamental policy of true national economy.

FUEL DIFFICULTY

Their greatest difficulty was the question of fuel. They had, however, produced more native fuel this year, and, if they husbanded it and distributed it as fairly as possible, he believed that they could guarantee that every family in the country would have enough for cooking and essential heating, even though this might entail public cooking in some places. To do this would require the goodwill and co-operation of all who had stocks of fuel or access to fuel-winning facilities. Everybody should save existing stocks, and, where possible, win additional fuel of all kinds, no matter how inferior to what was normally used. Everybody must regard it as selfish to use more than the barest minimum, even if they had lashings available. Everything above that minimum should go into or be left in the national pool—sold to or left with the distributors. That applied also to electricity and gas.

Mr. Aiken, continuing, said that, in view of the natural objections and criticisms which had arisen in regard to regulations and rations that the present situation had forced to be made, he would be bold, indeed, who would propose going further in that direction than they could possibly help. The future of the country did not lie in the hands of the Government alone. Indeed, it depended more on the spirit and energy of the people.

MR. T. O'LAOI AND MISS L. O'SHEA

The wedding took place at the Honan Chapel, University College, Cork, on Saturday of Mr. Tomas Ol Laoi, M.A., H.Dip., son of Mr. C. The ceremony, with Papal blessing, was performed by the Rev. M. J. Lee, D.I., Thurles (brother of the bridegroom), assisted by the Rev. C. F. Kee, D.D., C.C., Knockaney, Co. Limerick. Miss O'Shea was given away by her father; the best man was Mr. Louis Riordan (cousin of the groom), and the bridesmaid was Miss Maura O'Shea (sister of the bride).

The wedding has taken place in the Parish Church, Rathdowney, of Mr. W. H. Squires, Royal Bank of Ireland, Drogheda, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Squires, Frankfort avenue, Rathgar, Dublin, and Miss Doreen Allen, youngest daughter of Mrs. Allen and the late Mr. J. T. Allen, Rathdowney, Leix. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Canon T. D. Stuart, Rector, assisted by the Rev. F. T. Shannon, B.A. The best man was Mr. Percy Smyth, and the bridesmaid Miss Peggy Allen, sister of the bride; usher, Mr. K. Griffiths. The bride was given away by Mr. Cyril F. Dunne (cousin).

BARE LEGS NOW OFFICIAL
IRISH GIRLS DO AS THEY PLEASE

Government Departments in Great Britain have just issued one of those delightful circulars, so beloved by the Civil Service, announcing to women members of the staffs that "in present circumstances stockings are not deemed an essential part of costume for official purposes."

Legs, however, appear to have received no official recognition in this country. No instruction has ever been issued banning bare legs; therefore, no instruction is needed to make them official.

"It has been left to the good sense of the girls themselves," said a member of the Civil Service in Dublin on Saturday. "It has generally been the custom for girls working in public offices of the Service to wear stockings, but in other Departments they wear stockings—or appear without them—just as they please. I have never heard of anyone being told-off for being without stockings."

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

A WORLD PATTERN

In a leading article to-day The Times says:—" President Roosevelt's broadcast on Thursday night has been hailed in both hemispheres as a milestone in the history of the war. The 'shoot at sight' order will be followed by measures designed to make it thoroughly effective. Of these measures the launching ten days hence of the great battleship Massachusetts is an earnest and a symbol, and it is not a rash guess that the speeding up of production in all fields is one of the subjects under discussion between the President and his advisers during the week-end cruise of the Potomac.

"Mr. Roosevelt's speech, however, was more than an announcement to all whom it may concern of the course which the American Government think it henceforth right in their own interest to pursue. The President emphasised the decision as the product of 'a long-range point of view' towards events which must be regarded as part of a world pattern.' Nor can there be any illusion as to the nature of the pattern which destiny is weaving. It is a pattern whose threads are contracting the world and drawing it together in ever closer interdependence. No doubt, there are losses as well as gains to be registered in this process. The reverse side of air travel is air bombardment. The radio has brought not only an instantaneous and world-wide instrument of mutual intercourse, but the nuisance of political warfare over the air. These things have for good or evil made it impossible for the nations to remain indifferent to one another. We are all neighbours' now, and the only choice open to us is between the good neighbour policy and the bad neighbour policy. As the parable teaches, the indifferent neighbour is merely the bad neighbour."

NEW POST FOR MR. HUGO FLINN

BY OUR POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT.

Mr. Hugo Flinn, in addition to acting as Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister for Finance, has now a further responsibility as Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister for Local Government and Public Health. His appointment in the latter capacity dates from last Friday.

The appointment has been made for purposes of administrative convenience. In his new capacity Mr. Flinn will be in charge of engineering functions, embracing such matters as turf production, road works and employment schemes generally.

Before making this appointment it was necessary for the Government to make an Order under the Emergency Powers Act amending a section of the Ministers and Secretaries Act, 1924, which provides that not more than one Parliamentary Secretary should be appointed in respect of any one Department of State. Dr. C. Ward was already Parliamentary Secretary for Local Government.

The new Order amending the Ministers and Secretaries Act was made by the Government at its meeting on Friday and Mr. Flinn's appointment was made subsequently.

U.S. MOSCOW MISSION MEMBERS IN LONDON

Junior members of the American Mission to Moscow, accompanied by M. Oumansky, Soviet Ambassador to the United States, arrived in London last night after flying the Atlantic in two giant bombers. They were met by Sir Walter Layton, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Supply Council, and General Lee, Military Attaché at the American Embassy. M. Oumansky was greeted by Mr. Winant, the American Ambassador.

A spokesman said they did not know how long they would stay in London; much depended on the instructions of Mr. Averell Harriman, head of the Mission.

JAPANESE ENVOY WILL RETURN TO WASHINGTON

TOKYO, Sunday.

Mr. Wakasugi, Japanese Minister in Washington, is leaving Yokohama tomorrow for Washington.

His return after only a fortnight's consultations in Tokyo is regarded in some circles here as a possible indication that hope of Japanese-United States negotiations has not been abandoned.—(Reuter.)

The Battle of Russia

Italian war correspondents, telegraphing from the Russian front, report the appearance of white frost in the mornings, an almost certain sign that the bitter snows of Eastern Europe are not far distant. Already in the Leningrad sector there have been heavy rains, which have interfered with the speed and mobility of Ritter von Leeb's motorised forces, and the term "unfavourable weather" has been appearing frequently in the German bulletins of late. Of course, there has been a great deal of wishful thinking in regard to weather conditions in Russia. Those who remember Napoleon's disastrous experiences sometimes forget that Hindenburg conducted three winter campaigns in Russia, just as they forget that the Battle of the Nile was fought in torrid heat. Furthermore, while the fundamentals of military strategy have remained unchanged since the days of Nebuchadnezzar, vast improvements have been made in arrangements for the proper care of troops on active service; and, even if the Germans should be forced to spend the coming winter in Russia, there is no reason why their physical discomforts should be intolerable. There can be no doubt at all, on the other hand, that the German High Command is anxious to reach a decision against the Soviets before the onset of winter. Herr Hitler's generals have not forgotten that the real tussle will begin in earnest only when the Russian campaign has come to an end—in other words, when Germany's rear will have been safeguarded against attack from Russia, and she will be able to devote her undivided attention to the British Empire. After three months it still is impossible to tell whether or not Marshal Keitel will achieve his object. Russian resistance on all parts of the enormous front is showing no sign of flagging. On the contrary, even the German reports speak of "stubborn" fighting, and the ferocity of the struggle seems, if anything, to be increasing as the weeks go on. The ordinary principles of professional warfare do not seem to apply in Russia, where not only an army, but also an entire civilian population, has been mobilised in the national cause.

There are some four million inhabitants in Leningrad. With the exception of the young children and the very old, every one of them is playing some part in the defence of the city, which is being subjected to one of the most violent onslaughts in military history. When a whole population joins hands with an army, it constitutes a highly formidable obstacle for an attacking force. The case of Madrid has become classic, and the people of Leningrad certainly are as strongly determined as were the Madrilenos five years ago. Marshal Voroshilov, recognising the historic and moral significance of Leningrad, is making desperate efforts to raise the German siege. If he can hold out for another few weeks, the city probably will be safe for the winter; but Ritter von Leeb still disposes of tremendous forces, and is straining every nerve to smash the Russians' resistance. Reports from other parts of the front are not illuminating. Kiev seems to be in some danger. The Germans hope to secure possession of the Donetz basin before the winter, and thus to strike a heavy blow at Russia's war industry; but Marshals Timoshenko and Budenny are fully aware of this fact, and by a series of judicious counter-offensives they are diverting pressure not only from Kiev, but also from Odessa, and, so far, at any rate, they have shown themselves to be at least the equals of their opponents in respect both of strategy and of tactics. The position in the extreme south is obscure. For some time past there has been talk of a naval move by the Germans towards Odessa or the Crimea in order to outflank Budenny's forces. Russia's recent protest to Bulgaria seems to give colour to this suggestion, and the fact that the Bulgarian Government has placed the country on a war footing indicates that it is expecting trouble. The Turks also are on the qui vive. There still is a vague feeling that big events are pending in the Middle East, where weather conditions soon will be favourable for military purposes, and an attack by Russia on Bulgaria might be the signal for a general flare-up in that part of the world. Whatever happens, there is little likelihood of peace before the end of the year. The mad game must be played out to its inexorable end. Events have swept control out of the hands of reason. Mankind is helpless against the instruments which it has created for its own torture.

Sport and War

Some years before the war started a humorous paper in England published a pen-and-ink drawing that showed a motor cyclist, with a pillion passenger, passing a territorial camp. The wording beneath the drawing suggested that the motor cyclist was a low type of creature because he was riding past the camp instead of practising gunnery or some other military pursuit within its borders. The paper was criticised with a certain amount of feeling by the motor cycling Press and by motor cyclists in general. Since the Germans have demonstrated the value of their motor cyclist battalions, it has been realised across the Channel that the motor cyclist in the drawing may have been making just as useful a preparation for war as the men who were learning to march. That, however, is beside the point. The same humorous paper a couple of decades before had published an almost similar cartoon, except that in the earlier drawing the rider was on a pedal cycle. Further research might have discovered a cartoon around the period of the Crimea showing a man on a velocipede of ancient design passing a military camp of corresponding antiquity. It also is beside the point that any rider who happened to be passing a camp on a horse never was assumed by the aristocratic journal in question to be doing anything of which he might have reason to be ashamed. In this country there always has been a sensible appreciation of the value of sport, not only as a preparation for war, but also as a very necessary concomitant of a full life. It may be that the majority of people in Great Britain take a similarly wide view. Very large numbers of the young men of this country now are engaged in military service or in one of the various civil defence units. Instead of attempting to interfere with their sporting activities, however, the authorities have given them a great deal of encouragement. Cyclists and motor-cyclists have been recruited for the Army and the L.D.F., and proficiency in games has been encouraged by athletic contests. The fit man obviously is of greater value than the unfit man when the country needs his help, and sport is the principal medium through which physical fitness may be secured. Apart from physical fitness, it is desirable to have men with "fit" minds, and that type of mind can best be developed by a certain amount of recreation and diversion. Sport is flourishing in the twenty-six counties at the moment. Horse-racing never was more popular. Every type of game and athletic event is drawing its thousands of adherents. The golf courses of the country are crowded every week-end. It does not follow that the men of Eire are wasting time that they might employ more profitably. It means that they are keeping an even balance between work and play. When the testing time comes they probably will be found more adequately prepared to deal with it than if they had reduced themselves to a state of despondency as soon as the crisis threatened.

Games of Chance

There are seaside resorts in this country which offer so little in the way of amusement when the tide is out, night falling, and a drizzle in progress that the wayfarer, or holiday-maker, is driven into booths, or shacks, in which games of chance are organised for the benefit of the organiser. That is not to say that every holiday-maker that gambles is bound to lose; but, if any of them ever has broken the bank at Bray or Tramore, no record of the achievement has reached the newspapers. Still, just as at Monte Carlo, enthusiasts devise systems by which they hope to make a modest fortune, and probably a great deal of their holiday money is lost in establishing the fact that the system does not work. Lucky people have made a lot of money at Monte Carlo. Most of them have been Americans. There was William Nelson Darnborough, "le Roi de Roulette," who won no less than £83,000 in the space of three or four seasons at the tables. In more recent times the Dolly Sisters, who were stage celebrities, were credited with mighty successes. The tables at Monte Carlo, however, are much more elaborate than those used at the small casinos for the type of roulette known as "boule." The young stranger on the Côte d'Azur is almost certain to be warned that, while he has a chance at Monte Carlo, he is almost certain to lose if he plays the tables at any of the small casinos between Cannes and San Remo. This is not because there is anything dishonest about the conduct of the game; it is due to the fact that the odds are weighed in favour of "the house." Needless to say, the roulette that is played around the coast of Eire is not modelled on the ambitious plan of Monte Carlo; it is "boule" in its most simple form. Just as there have been no reports of the bank being broken anywhere, neither have there been reports of holiday-makers losing their fortunes and shooting themselves either in disgust or desperation; if any fund exists for supplying broken gamblers with their 'bus fares home from Bray or their train fares home from more distant resorts, a discreet silence is being maintained about it. Last week a number of "amusement caterers" were prosecuted and fined for carrying on games with such weird titles as "pongo" and "ring 'em" on the Strand road, Bray. "Pongo" and "ring 'em" apparently are a form of fierce gambling beside which roulette is only in "the ha'penny place." If it were otherwise, why should the police interfere? The authorities know that, if there were no "gambling hells" for the amusement, and possibly the education, of the holiday-maker on wet nights, some Irish seaside resorts would get a bad name owing to visitors throwing themselves over cliffs or out of hotel windows in the absence of anything better to do. Probably the prosecution of the "pongo" and "ring 'em" merchants was a gesture to the antiquated laws on the subject of gambling generally. If we were a people with any real moral courage, we would erect decent State or municipal casinos at our leading resorts, and make gambling a source of profit to the nation or the town; alternatively, we would put a complete ban on gambling—of every sort—and see that the ban were enforced. As it is, we dither between approval and disapproval. While black and red and odd and even and all the numbers up to nine may be supported with pennies, sixpences and even half-crowns, the intricacies of "pongo" and "ring 'em" must be learned at home, out of a book, if the recruit to those mysterious recreations desires to keep clear of the Garda Siochana at Bray.

MANŒUVRES IN UNITED STATES

The greatest mock war in United States history began yesterday between the Second and Third Armies. Lieut.-General Ben Lear is in command of the Second Army, with 150,000 men, while Lieut.-General Walter Kreuger, in command of the Third Army, has 330,000 men.

General Lear, though outnumbered in man-power, has the advantage of the First Armoured Corps, the only complete organisation of tanks and armoured vehicles now in the country.

HANDEL'S "MESSIAH"

DUBLIN COMMEMORATION

In commemoration of the bi-centenary of the composition of Handel's "Messiah," selections from the oratorio were rendered at both Services in Christ Church Cathedral, Dublin, yesterday. The Archdeacon of Glendalough preached at the Morning Service, and in the afternoon Mr. T. H. Weaving, organist of the cathedral, gave an address on "The Messiah."

In November 1741, said Mr. Weaving, one of the greatest composers, broken in health and wealth by the neglect, opposition and spite of London's musical public and Press, came to Dublin on the invitation of Lord Devonshire, then Lord Lieutenant. Handel brought with him many works for performance, including his new oratorio, "The Messiah," which was completed on September 14th, 1741, after 24 days' work. The words were taken from the Bible. The first performance was given under the composer's direction at the Music Hall, Fishamble street, Dublin, on April 12th, 1742, the male soloists and chorus being drawn from the two Dublin cathedrals. Handel experienced the greatest success of his life then, and for 200 years the oratorio had held, and possibly increased, its hold on the people of Dublin. It was first heard in London a year later, and it took eight years to achieve its recognised place as the greatest Christian oratorio in the English language. Handel conducted many annual performances of it in aid of the Foundling Hospital, which added £7,000 to its funds thereby. Performances still produced more money for charity than any other work, and the only oratorios which shared its popularity were Haydn's "Creation" and Mendelssohn's "Elijah."

LONDON LETTER

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
SUNDAY NIGHT.

The general registration of men for fire-watching, which was in progress in many parts of Britain to-day, lends point to a report brought back to London from Russia by the fire experts who have been on a visit to Moscow. The members of the delegation have been greatly impressed by the fact that men and women from sixteen to sixty-five must "roof-spot" and fire-watch or be subjected to severe penalties. This tends to harden the opinion that not only men, but women, must be brought under compulsion in this country if fire-watching is to be carried on with efficiency. Many local bodies hesitate to take steps to this end, but the report is likely to bring about a change. The formation of a national fire service in Britain will replace some 1,400 separate fire brigades by thirty-three regions of the national service, and a quarter of a million fire-fighters will be available, apart from the watchers who will be called upon as a result of the registration which started to-day. By next week-end all men between the ages of eighteen and sixty will have registered for fire duty.

Communal Food

The number of communal restaurants in Britain continues to grow, and there are now seven under the control of the London County Council, as well as many others which are being run by borough councils and other bodies. In provincial centres the same tendency is noticeable, and for several reasons the principle of communal feeding is likely to extend. Every endeavour is made to keep down the cost of the meals, so that a dinner is obtainable for as low a charge as possible; but the idea of providing a hot meal for sixpence, which was one of the original aims, has been abandoned, and the charges now run to ninepence or a shilling in different districts. For a shilling it is possible to obtain a meat dish, with vegetables, a sweet with custard, and a cup of tea. As the scheme extends more labour is necessary to prepare and serve the meals, and, as the number of voluntary workers is limited, paid helpers have to be employed, this accounting for the increased cost of the meals.

Channel Islands

More communications are now being received from the Channel Islands, where a number of British and Irish people were left behind when the German occupation of the islands occurred, but there is a great deal of variation in the time taken. In some cases replies have been received in this country in about fourteen weeks, but in others the period has been much longer. The letters are sent from Britain by air to Lisbon, where they are posted to the German Red Cross in Berlin, and from there they are despatched to the German Red Cross in Paris, from which place they are forwarded to Jersey. Transport difficulties may account for some of the delays, but most of them are due to the strict censorship to which the correspondence is subjected.

Foreign Doctors

The British Medical Association will soon issue a new order which will enable any foreign doctor to have his name entered upon the medical register for the duration of the war. The step has become necessary because there is a shortage of doctors, and numbers of qualified men from other countries are seeking work. Many men from the British overseas Dominions have been already registered without examination, and this was followed by the extension of the privilege to a number of foreigners; but Spaniards were omitted, and this differentiation will be ended by the order. Under the earlier relaxations, foreign doctors were allowed to work only in Government services, but now they will be able to enter private practices as assistants.

New Textiles

There is no falling off in the number of women to be seen knitting in London, and in the train, 'bus and tube they ply their needles as busily as ever. Coupons are necessary for the purchase of wool for civilian garments, but for men in the Navy, Army or Air Force it is possible to purchase a limited quantity of wool, regulations permitting this having been introduced this month. Wool is not the only material used by the knitters; for new materials placed on the market by British manufacturers are becoming popular. These are made from vegetable fibres, and freedom from shrinkage in the wash is not the only advantage, as they are also free of coupons, which adds to their popularity.

Flax-growing

Among the experimental crops sown by farmers in Britain this year, flax has turned out well, the weather conditions having combined with suitability of soil in some parts to produce an excellent yield in the harvest, which is now in progress. In the South of England schoolboys are assisting in the flax harvest, which promises to be satisfactory enough for a further sowing next year. Increased production of flax in Britain will be of great assistance, since the demand for linen goods continues to grow both for civilian use and for military and aviation equipment.

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Robert E. Sherwood

Now that Captain Denis Ireland, Mr. Peadar O'Donnell, and Miss May Morton, representing Ireland at the International Congress of P.E.N., are in London, they are likely to meet Mr. Robert E. Sherwood, the American dramatist, who is to be one of the United States representatives.

And they may find more than literary and professional associations with Mr. Sherwood. I will not go so far as to say that he is of Irish descent like Eugene O'Neill and other American playwrights. But his middle name is Emmet—with single "t," as in the famous Irish family—and his mother was one of the Emmets, of New Rochelle, New York.

Like other ladies of the New Rochelle Emmets, Mrs. Rosina E. Sherwood was an artist of some note, and her dramatist son may owe something of his talent to her.

If he is in London this week it would be a happy thought for P.E.N. to invite him to Ireland. Unfortunately, he would be too late to see his adaptation of "Tovarich" by the Illsley-McCabe company at the Cork Opera House this week with Meriel Moore, Christopher Casson, and Ginette Waddell.

By the way, when Mr. Sherwood's "The Petrified Forest" was on at the Gaiety some months ago, it was incorrectly claimed that that was its first production in Ireland. As a matter of fact, its first production here was by the New Theatre Group, over a year ago, before these pioneers deserted the south side for the north bank of the Liffey.

I remember that production well; for I heard a lady sitting near me on a very cold night say that theatre and audience were as petrified as the forest.

Dan MacGranaghan

I met Mr. Dan MacGranaghan, one of "the big five," the other night. He had been presiding at a meeting of the Irish Live-stock Exporters' Association.

But it is as one of the five men appointed by the Department of Agriculture at the outbreak of the foot-and-mouth epidemic to purchase cattle for the Dublin meat trade that he interested me. Although the big five, as they are called, ceased in July to act for the Government, they are still carrying on at the request of the Dublin victuallers.

Mr. MacGranaghan is a Donegal man, who spent his early days in Scotland. But he found his way to Royal Meath eventually, and, having acquired a wife from Tipperary, he settled down as a farmer at Nobber. At that headquarters he has also carried on horse-breeding. On this head he has scored considerable success; for he has already bred two winners. For more years now than I care to remember I have seen his face at Irish race meetings. His friends insist that he plays a very good game of bridge.

Mr. MacGranaghan treats as a joke the idea that Irish herds could have been saved by treatment during the outbreak. He has absolute faith in the Minister for Agriculture and the Veterinary Department and the thoroughness with which they are coping with the situation.

Miles of Cigarettes

I understand that if all the cigarettes smoked in the twenty-six counties in a year were placed end to end they would stretch for a distance of 130,000 miles. An enchanting picture in those weed-restricted days.

But has it struck anybody at all that, taking this figure to be reasonably accurate, and allowing one-fifth of a cigarette to represent the average butt-end, we have 26,000 miles of cigarette ends (placed end to end) in a year.

I am far too indolent to work this out in tons (and, anyway, it is more picturesque in miles), but it is obvious that one-fifth of our precious tobacco allowance is wasted.

There ought to be an organisation called the National Society for the Preservation of Fallen Butts.

"Bitter Sweet" Again

When a film critic goes to extremes he must expect repercussions from one quarter or another, writes our Cinema Correspondent. I bowed to the inevitable, therefore, when I saw those repercussions to my notice of "Bitter Sweet" appear in the "Diary." Most of what you say (says he) is perfectly true; for, alas! I never had the good fortune to see this musical comedy at His Majesty's Theatre eleven years ago—or at any other theatre for that matter.

It was left for me to review this film on its own merits, and, as you are painfully aware, I was delighted with it, being quite oblivious to the fact that your little French girl had been treated in such a disgraceful fashion or that the whole show had been so badly manhandled. You will, however, admit that "Bitter Sweet," as a film, was excellent screen entertainment of a typically "musical comedyish" nature, in spite of—and in some ways because of—the inevitable trace of "extravaganza" which every Hollywood producer feels bound to drag into the works of another artist, no matter how popular the original version may have been.

Jeannette's Teeth

There is one point in your paragraph, however, which I must refute vigorously. Surely you are being a trifle hard on Jeannette MacDonald when you liken her smile to a tooth-paste advertisement; for Jeannette is a singer, and it is universally acknowledged that it is extremely difficult to sing with one's mouth closed.

When it is remembered that she sang for a considerable portion of the picture, and that all directors are under the impression that audiences like to see just where the notes are originating, it is not surprising that we were treated to rather too many close-ups of her dental formations—and very nice dental formations too.

DUKE OF KENT BACK

The Duke of Kent has returned to Britain from Canada, where he visited a number of air training establishments in connection with the Commonwealth air training plan.

The Duke's tour, in the course of which he has travelled some 15,000 miles by air, was described by the Dominions Office last night as "most successful and widely appreciated."

The Duke left for Canada on July 29 and became the first member of the Royal Family to fly the Atlantic. He crossed in a Liberator "ferry service" 'plane, and spent part of the time in the cockpit—he holds a pilot's licence.

During his tour he flew across the Rockies, opened the Canadian National Exhibition, and visited war establishments in the United States, where he stayed as the guest of President Roosevelt.

THE SOCIETY OF JESUS

FOURTH CENTENARY OF IRISH FOUNDATION

THEY were celebrating a big event in the history of the Church and their country—the fourth centenary of the foundation of the Society of Jesus, said the Most Rev. Joseph Walsh, D.D., Archbishop of Tuam, preaching yesterday at High Mass in St. Francis Xavier's, Gardiner street, Dublin, the concluding day of the Triduum.

The Archbishop said that some Irish chieftains and bishops, when it was made penal to celebrate Mass and administer the Sacraments, appealed for help to Rome, and in 1539 Pope Pius III. turned to St. Ignatius for assistance. Thus it happened that our country won the glorious distinction that the Irish Mission was the first born among the missions of the Society of Jesus. In 1550 two Fathers of the Society—Salmeron and Broet—were commissioned to go to Ireland with the full power of Papal Nuncios. Although to go to Ireland was to court death, they landed here and carried out the mission very successfully, until King Henry's agents forced them out of the country.

ANOTHER MISSION

When the storm of persecution began to reign more fiercely under Elizabeth four Irish chieftains again appealed to Rome, and Pius IV. sent another mission to Ireland, the leader being Father David Woulfe, of whom any country or society might be proud.

Even in the midst of persecution the Jesuit Fathers showed that interest in education which was characteristic of the Society. In the walled towns of the Midlands and the South successful schools were opened, and a full course given in the subjects of our present day secondary schools. As early as 1564 the Jesuit Fathers tried to establish a Catholic university, but their enemies thwarted the attempt. In 1565 they opened a Latin school in Limerick. Owing to persecution it had to be moved to different places, but the Fathers did not flinch in their work. Every one of them was imprisoned, and Edward Daniel, a scholastic, was in 1572 the first Jesuit martyr in Europe. Pope Clement VII. in 1598 appointed a third mission, and the fate that befell the Fathers showed the danger and difficulties that had to be faced. This third Jesuit mission established schools that gained such a name that even Protestant parents began to send their children. A school established in Back lane, Dublin, reached the status of University College, but was suppressed by the Anglican Archbishop of Dublin, aided by military from the Castle.

"SAVED FOR PAPACY"

Dr. Mahaffy said that "the Jesuits by their vigorous and able action during the closing years of the sixteenth century saved Ireland for the Papacy." What was true of the sixteenth century, said Archbishop Walsh, was true of the later centuries. The battle for the schools was carried on continuously with intense zeal. The period of the penal repression was marked by the same activity and zeal of the Jesuit Fathers. It would seem that the Fathers never left Dublin without a school. Down through the last century and up to this day the Fathers had given the lead in all branches of education.

The fight against the anti-Catholic laws was particularly trying, but with dauntless courage, self-denial and devotion the Jesuits fought the battle of the Faith for more than 200 years; Jesuits and other Catholic priests taking refuge in the woods and caves preached to the people, administered the Sacraments and celebrated Mass. They endured hunger, sickness, exile and death. They had suffered and died with the people, and the people knew they would never fail them in the future.

THE HIGH MASS

The Most Rev. the Archbishop of Dublin presided at the High Mass. The assistant at the throne was the Venerable Archdeacon MacMahon, and the deacons at the throne were the Very Rev. Canon Dargan and the Very Rev. Canon Sheehan, P.P. Terenure. The master of ceremonies at the throne was the Rev. C. MacCarthy. In the choir were the Right Rev. Monsignor Boylan and the Very Rev. T. R. MacMahon, S.J., Provincial, who also received the Archbishop of Dublin on arrival.

The Mass was celebrated by the Rev. T. Fackler, S.J.; the deacon and subdeacon being the Rev. J. Howalson, S.J., and the Rev F Finegan, S.J. The master of ceremonies was the Rev. J. Erraught, S.J.

The Minister for Finance, Mr. S. T. O'Kelly, T.D., was present, with other public personages.

At the evening Service Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament was given by the Most Rev. Dr. Paschal Robinson, Apostolic Nuncio, and the sermon was preached by the Rev. Simon Hayes, O.D.C.

The Jesuit Society was in point of time the first religious order to dedicate itself formally to the work of the missions, said the Very Rev. Father James, O.F.M., Cap., Cork, in preaching the sermon at Pontifical High Mass on Saturday in the Church of St. Francis Xavier, Gardiner street, Dublin the second day of the Solemn Triduum to celebrate the fourth centenary of the foundation of the Society of Jesus.

Sent for Trial.—Michael Faulkiner, 86 Patrick's terrace, Kilrush, was returned for trial last Friday at Ennis on the charge of robbery with violence.

EIGHT DEAD AND FORTY INJURED

RAIL CRASH IN ENGLAND

SHINING a torch upon his severed leg, and murmuring, "My God, I am in a mess," Pilot Officer William Evans, one of the victims in a Cheshire rail crash early yesterday, refused a cup of tea, and said: "There must be others more badly injured." He died later in hospital.

Five members of the Services and a three years old girl not yet identified were among the eight who lost their lives when the 12.3 a.m. Crewe to Leeds express and the 12.50 a.m. Crewe-Manchester train collided at Hemlmes Chapel Station, near Sandbach. Forty people were injured, twenty being detained in hospital.

TRACK TORN UP

The express, a mail train, was almost stationary when the other train ran into the rear, smashing two coaches in which most of the casualties occurred. The damaged engine of the rear train was forced over on its side and two of its coaches partly derailed. The track was torn up for about fifty yards. The driver and fireman escaped uninjured by jumping on to the embankment a second before the collision occurred.

Members of the Home Guard, ambulances, nurses and other personnel from First-Aid posts raced to the scene in the darkness, and by the beam of a searchlight in a field adjoining the track the work of getting out the dead and injured proceeded. Private cars and several tradesmen's vans were used to convey the injured to the hospital. One of the passengers in the rear train—Sergt. C. G Base, of the R.A.F.—told a reporter of the heartrending scenes. "I was thrown forward while walking towards the back of the train," he said, "and after struggling out on to the embankment mustered a number of Service men, who started the rescue work. There were some real heroes among those injured people. We found a sailor trapped by the rails, which had been lifted by the force of the collision. He seemed to have his leg and arm smashed, but he urged us to help others before himself."

An official statement issued by the L.M.S. stated that the cause of the accident, which occurred at 1.20 a.m., was at present under investigation. It was hoped to clear the blocked line during the day. Alternative routes and 'bus services were organised.

THE DEAD

Those killed were Acting-Corporal J. Williams, R.A.F., of Hull; Clause Sowden, 2nd Lincs Regiment, Spring Grove, Fenay Bridge, Huddersfield; Cadet J. H. Lennos Octu, R.A., of Hersey avenue, Stanmore; George Christelow, of Eden street, Oswestry; Goods Guard Reginald Gregory, of Bushbury; Pilot-Officer William Evans, of Old High street, Ynysddu, Newport, Mon.; and Sergeant John McCrae, of Park avenue, Skipton, Yorks, died in hospital.

Among the injured was Samuel McReavie (38), of Crumlin road, Belfast.

ATLANTIC AIR EXPRESS SERVICE

NEW YORK, Sunday.

Pan-American Airways announce the inauguration on September 25 of the first trans-Atlantic air express service between the United States and Europe.

Shipments to Europe cannot be accepted unless accompanied by "aircerts" from British Consular officials certifying that they contain no war contraband, states the company.

Delivery will be made by the giant Clippers, which maintain the thrice weekly schedules between New York and Lisbon.

An Airways official pointed out that mail and passenger demands have hitherto left no space for cargoes, but in recent weeks the traffic bottleneck at Lisbon has been reduced.

Air express rates have been fixed at 2 dollars (about 10s.) per lb., with a 5 dollar (25s.) shipping minimum. Packages containing money, securities and cheques cannot be accepted for the service.—Reuter.

NIGHT-WORKERS FOR RED CROSS

Members of the first Night-workers' Section of the Red Cross formed in Dublin were presented with Red Cross certificates on Saturday at a supper in the Moira Hotel.

Mr. D. Bridgeman, Hon. Secretary of the Dublin branch of the Society, who presented the certificates in the absence, through illness, of Dr. T. Bouchier-Hayes, Co. Divisional Medical Director, said the section, which consists of members of the Irish Press and Irish Times staffs, was unique in having obtained 100 per cent. passes. They owed much of their success to Mr. J. R. Gallagher, who had instructed them in the practical section of the course.

A writing set was presented to Mr. Gallagher.

WINTER CAMPAIGN IN RUSSIA

DIFFICULTIES OF GERMAN ADVANCE

BY OUR MILITARY CORRESPONDENT.

IT may seem a bit premature to talk about the approach of winter in mid-September, but we are dealing with a severe Continental climate, not a mild oceanic one. At that, it is a question of fairly Northern latitudes: Moscow is as far north as Edinboro', and Leningrad as far north as the Shetlands. Also, as far as can be ascertained, the weather in Russia has this year been cold and wet at a somewhat earlier date than ordinarily. There have been, in German official communications, a very considerable number of statements to this effect. It is also only reasonable to attribute the persistence and weight of the attack on Leningrad to their desire to capture the city before winter closes on the front as a whole.

FINLAND TRAINING

Several weeks ago a report from Russia said: "Untouched reserves of soldiers are being trained in specialised winter tactics." In this particular direction the experience of two years earlier in Finland will prove invaluable. Seeing that, in a general way, the tactics and technique of the Russians have proved so much better than was expected, a marked advance may be looked for in winter fighting. What use will be made of the vast forces of cavalry?—genuine cavalry, none of your mechanised stuff here — at the disposal of the Russian Command. Leaving out the eight divisions in the Far East, they were in European Russia no fewer than 25 such divisions. As far as is known for certain, none of these has fought up to now—although Marshal Budyenny made his name with this arm in the earlier wars. They may very well continue to confer mobility when other arms are at a standstill. Another well-judged measure of winter preparation is that aiming at making towns self-contained as far as possible—thus discounting in advance the worsening of communications generally.

FOR WINTER

The Germans are also making the necessary preparations for a winter campaign with characteristic thoroughness. Timber for enormous quantities of hutments is being cut and sawn in the forests of the minor Allies—Finland, Hungary and Rumania. Everything possible is being done with a view to mobilising men and material to improve communications, etc. During the winter, indeed, the problem of communications will be the real one confronting the Germans; they will be needed not merely if there is any intention of local advances, but even for the ordinary upkeep of a front containing such numerous effectives.

It would not be easy definitely to date the battle of Leningrad, but it has lasted the best part of four weeks. In other words, fighting of battle intensity has lasted that long in the south-western environs. The German claim to have isolated the city seems to call for qualification; it is hard to see how this can be so, while the Russians have naval control of Lake Ladoga—a fact nobody as yet has disputed. Then the mere dead-weight inertia of a great city is very hard to overcome physically. We may, presumably, take it that the place is well provisioned—as it certainly is thoroughly well munitioned. And the morale of the defenders certainly seems unlikely to break just yet.

THE BALTIC FLEET

It is, similarly, not clear to what extent the Baltic Fleet is bottled up. The Russians had already ample time to transfer to Murmansk as many small craft as could there be used with profit. It seems likely that many more can be employed with advantage to secure elbow-room around Lake Ladoga. As for the big ships, it is not easy to see them quite cornered while the Baltic islands remain in Russian hands. It should be remembered that all through 1915-'16 the Russian Navy showed itself superior to all others in skilful use of mine-fields—and relative strengths are now far more favourable. The question of ice will not become acute for a few months yet. Indeed, with regard to the bottling up of the Baltic Fleet, this may not inaptly be compared to a badger in his box—only a good dog can draw him!

A NEW PHASE?

In the central sector we have recently got a few welcome place-names, and so can orient ourselves rather more accurately. First, there was Yelnia: this is about 50 miles S.E. of Smolensk, and the Russians are now well to the westward of it. Next, there is Trubtchevsk—on the Desna, some 50 miles S.W. of Briansk. Here the Germans attacked, and are said to have been repelled. Lastly, there is Tchernigov, on the right bank of the Desna—where the chaussée from Kiev to Gomel crosses that river. It would, thus, appear as if a new phase is opening along the Desna, the Dnieper's most important left-bank tributary. This river takes its rise near Yelnia, and flows into the Dnieper just above Kiev—the distance from source to mouth being some 300 miles in an air-line. Apparently, the sequence of events was that the very definite success towards Smolensk of Daniev's army of the Timoshenko group drew a German reaction further south, aimed in a S.E. direction, towards the Eastern Ukraine and in rear of Kiev—as also, of course, to split the Budrenny and Timoshenko groups of armies. The Desna forms a strong line, covering all south-central Russia very completely.

DEFENCE OF KIEV

Along the Southern sector, the Russians have been making local counter-attacks—it would appear with some success. The attack on Odessa has eased off; but will, doubtless, be renewed. The latest reports are that Kiev, at the northern end of this sector, is being organised, like Leningrad and Odessa, as a gigantic strong point. Indeed, just as a quarter of a century ago the Germans on the Somme organised the most useful villages — Combles, Thiepoal, etc.—in a tactical way, so to-day the Russians are similarly organising cities on a strategical basis. The inevitable result is fighting of equal desperateness.

CLIMATIC ENEMY

According to the Berlin correspondent of a Swiss journal: "It is being said that Leningrad, Moscow and Kiev must fall before November 15th"—as being the beginning of real winter in Russia. Be that as it may, Napoleon evacuated Moscow a month earlier than that. In actual fact, it is the rains preceding the "snow and ice" winter which are more troublesome to the advancing Germans. After that the great obstacle is really deep snow, which nullifies the solidifying effect of the frost. If the Germans are really thinking along these lines, it must be by drawing an analogy — probably false from their 1914 operations in Poland. These were immediately based on their excellent home railway net, while the distances and numbers involved were altogether less considerable. It may be accepted—since there is already bad weather—that practically from now on climatic conditions will increasingly play a part in the Russian fighting.

R.A.F. WING SENT TO RUSSIA

A wing of the R.A.F. has arrived in Russia to fight with the Red Air Force against the Luftwaffe, the Press Association Air correspondent states.

Usually a self-contained unit fully equipped with machines, pilots and ground personnel, the wing is believed to be the vanguard of a steady stream of air support for the Eastern front air war.

The number of squadrons in a wing is a secret in wartime, and no indication is given whether the wing sent consists of bombers or fighters, although it is for the latter that Russia has asked. Normally, a wing consists of at least two squadrons.

The presence of British airmen in Russia, the correspondent adds, will also aid Soviet airmen in learning to fly British fighters, hundreds of which Mr. Churchill disclosed in Parliament last week have already been sent.

The Italians claimed last week that American-type 'planes were operating in the Leningrad area, but there is no confirmation of this in London. It is, however, not unlikely that Tomahawks have been shipped from Britain to Murmansk, Russia's Arctic port, and there assembled. Hurricanes might have been flown from the Middle East to the Soviet-Iranian frontier by easy stages, so providing fighter support in Southern Russia.

KEROSENE RETAIL LICENCES

Attention is directed to the notices published by the Minister for Supplies regarding paraffin oil. The closing date for the issue of kerosene retailers' licences has been fixed by the Minister as the 30th September, and applications received after that date will not be entertained. Persons who wish to take out licences for the retail sale of paraffin oil are, therefore, advised to make immediate application to the Department of Supplies, as delay in applying for registration may result in their exclusion from the rationing scheme.

Similarly, domestic users of paraffin oil are advised to register with their normal retailers by the same date, as retailers may not be able to obtain supplies to meet the needs of customers who delay registration till after the 30th September. Domestic users are warned against registration with more than one retailer. Each retailer is asked by the Minister to advise him immediately of the number of registered customers accepted by him so that suitable arrangements may be made by the Department for the distribution of supplies, in relation to registered customers, in October.

BIG TURKISH EARTHQUAKE

OVER 200 PEOPLE DEAD

ROME, Sunday.

Over 200 people have been killed in an earthquake which has shaken parts of Anatolia, Turkey, says an Istanbul despatch to the Italian News Agency.

The 'quake is said to have caused "enormous damage." Some villages have been almost totally destroyed. The main weight of the 'quake was felt by villages in the neighbourhood of Van, a town in Turkish Armenia, 145 miles south-east of Erzerum. Most of the bodies have been recovered from ruins there.

Rescue work is still in progress, and it is feared that the death roll is not yet complete. A number of injured have been taken to hospital.—(Reuter.)

COLOURS PRESENTED TO 26TH BATTALION

The 26th Battalion of the Defence Forces received its colours yesterday in Clarke square, Collins Barracks. The presentation was made by Mrs. P. Keogh, wife of a member of the battalion, which is composed of pre-Truce members of the Irish Republican Army. After the colours had been blessed by the Rev. J. McLaughlin, C.F., Mr. Oscar Traynor, Minister for Defence, inspected the battalion. The Minister was accompanied by Lieutenant-General McKenna, Chief of Staff, and Colonel L. Archer, Assistant Chief of Staff, and they were received at the barracks by Colonel L. Hoolan, O.C., Eastern Command.

The colour standard, which is a beautifully worked sunburst on a blue ground, and also includes representations of incidents in Irish history, was handed by Mrs. Keogh to Mr. Traynor, who presented it to the officer commanding the battalion, who then handed it to the colour party.

After the inspection No. 3 Army Band led the battalion past a saluting base, at which the Minister took the salute. The 5th Engineering Field Company also took part in the march past, after which the battalion reformed in Clarke square and dismissed. A large number of relatives and friends of the members of the battalion were allowed into the barracks to see the ceremony.

Stationmaster's Death.—The funeral took place on Saturday of Mr. Meredith J. Cunningham, Stationmaster, G.S. Railways, Castlecomer, and son of the late Mr. E. J. Cunningham, who was a Superintendent in the G.S.E. service.

Film Notes

Oh, Mr. Pasternak!

By Our Cinema Correspondent

WHEN Deanna Durbin's eighth picture, "Spring Parade," was shown in Dublin some months ago I wrote, in high glee, that Hollywood film dictators, after a few fruitless efforts to glamourise their Cinderella, had given her back her shiny nose. In Nice Girl? which the Savoy feature this week, they are up to their old tricks again, and this time they have excelled themselves.

In the first place they make the poor kid wear her hair at impossible angles, instead of letting it flop about in the old carefree way. Then they make her mouth sentences to her boy friend which no girl of nineteen—whether glamour-struck or a book-worm—would dare to utter unless appearing in amateur dramatics. Worst of all, they make her sing "Swanee River." Now I have nothing against this fine old melody; but I do think that something more appropriate could have been found to display this magnificent young voice.

The story is entertaining, and tells what happens when that "nice girl," Deanna, drives Franchot Tone to the station, and returns in pink pyjamas to her small town at three o'clock in the morning, with her hooter blowing just to let the neighbours know she is back. Hence the question mark after the title.

Franchot Tone is as good as usual, but honours go to Robert Benchley, well-known star of short features. It seems such a pity to spoil the film for want of a shiny nose.

Capitol

Normally I cannot stand Dr. Kildare pictures, which invariably depict Lew Ayres as a martyred hero who can do no wrong, and who merely smiles in a sad, twisted sort of way when all and sundry walk on his upturned face. My Life is Yours, however, is a definite improvement on its predecessors, and it is grizzly old Dr. Gillespie's barking and sly wisecracks that are responsible for this, for Kildare is still somewhat glorified.

This time he gets himself into trouble when he performs an emergency operation after a car crash, for his patient—a professional skater—contracts paralysis, and sues him for many more dollars than he can afford. Of course, it is not really his fault—dear me, no!—and he is saved from Disgrace and Ruin by his fairy godmother, Lionel Barrymore. Fortunately his salvation is not accomplished before we are treated to some intriguing situations, many laughs, and quite a few close-ups of pretty nurse Laraine Day, whom Dr. Kildare will marry if the series runs long enough. In spite of a rather tedious court scene, made tolerable by Gillespie's mutterings, this film almost converted me.

Metropole

It was beginning to look as if Hollywood had run out of plots dealing with the idiosyncrasies of two husbands and a wife, two wives and a husband, or a husband, a wife, and a mother-in-law. In Model Wife they have unearthed yet another situation. This time it is all about two young people who get married and decide to keep their jobs, which is all very proper in these hard times. Unfortunately, they do not tell anybody about their marriage in case one of them loses their job, and delightful complications ensue when the wife is asked out by the Boss's son.

Saucer-eyed Joan Blondell is the cause of most of the "divarsion," and she flutters beautifully through the picture, dragging the protesting Dick Powell behind her on a string, which sometimes assumes the proportions of a rope. More fun and games are introduced by Charlie Ruggles, who is making a come-back, having had some of his thunder stolen recently by Frank Morgan.

Corinthian

The last picture in which I saw Andy Devine was "Hot Steel," and it appears that he has been sent North to cool down. He is out of luck, however, for when there is Mutiny in the Arctic it is very difficult to keep cool, even though you are fighting against a background of towering icebergs, furry Eskimos, and other natural phenomena which Hollywood delights in photographing.

The film deals with the adventures of an expedition in search of radium, and bubbles with plot and counter-plot, crossings and double-crossings. Richard Arlen, of the pained expression, is well to the fore, and manages to stay alive throughout the picture, despite the attentions of the first mate in the expedition's ship and a snake in the grass who poses as his friend.

In support is "They Wanted Wings," which shows the Dead End Kids and the Little Tough Guys dusting crops with the aid of broken-down 'planes. Highly improbable, but definitely exciting.

Royal

If you do not mind bad acting, which seems to be an essential in all Westerns, and if you like pictures about strong, silent, good men overcoming strong, noisy, bad men, you should go to Fighting Marshall, for it contains enough gun-play and horse-play to satisfy the most avid of "cowboy" fans. Richard Dix, looking as strong and resolute as ever, is the F.M., and spends his time encroaching upon the nice little businesses built up by the strong, noisy, bad men, and gazing into those great big starry eyes of Florence Rice. All the fundamentals are there—the family feud, the stage coach robbery, the saloon with a mirror in which the hero can see just who is going to shoot him in the back, and the respected citizen, charming the old ladies, wearing disgusting ties, and swindling everyone as much as he can—the cad. There are, I am afraid, no Indians, but there is a magnificent gun fight, in which the hero shoots the villain—or did you guess? All very rousing, and great stuff of its kind.

* * *

* * *

Rookies (Carlton). Hollywood shows young Americans what a nice time they will have in the Army—provided they are caught in the same draft as Bud Abbott, Lou Costello and the Andrews Sisters.

* * *

The Old and the Young King (Astor). Emil Jannings in the story of Frederick the Great. The going is somewhat tough for the average film fan, but he will like it if he can sit 't through.

* * *

I Wanted Wings (Regal Rooms). Ray Milland gets what he wants, if not what he deserves, in a film which does for the U.S. Air Corps what "Rookies" does for the Army. Also involved are William Holden and Wayne Morris.

* * *

Petticoat Fever (Green) claims Robert Montgomery, which is not surprising, when Myrna Loy is in the offing. In support is "Shakedown," with Lew Ayres.

* * *

Bank Detective (Grafton). A screamingly funny picture, featuring that king of comedians, W. C. Fields. I guarantee that you will be prostrated with mirth—or something.

* * *

Drums of the Desert (Astoria). Ralph Byrd and Lorna Grey in a conglomeration of foreign legioneers, paratroops and sand. Also "Marked Men," with Warren Hull and Isabel Jewell. From Thursday, Franchot Tone and Isabel Jewell. From Thursday, Franchot Tone and Warren Williams in "The Trail of the Vigilantes," with "The Man at the Gate," starring Wilfrid Lawson, in support.

* * *

Kitty Foyle (Pavilion). Ginger Rogers puts aside her dancing shoes, acts, and wins herself an academy award. From Thursday, Lucille Ball and George Murphy in "The Navy Steps Out," and a re-issue of "The Devil and the Deep," featuring Charles Laughton.

* * *

Four Mothers (Regent). The final stage in the domestication of the Four Daughters—the Lane Sisters and Gale Page. From Thursday, "Mark of Zorro," with Tyrone Power and Linday Darnell.

* * *

URBAN COUNCILS' RATE PAYMENTS

SENATOR SUGGESTS REVISION OF SYSTEM

"The financial relations between the county councils and urban councils must be revised in the near future, otherwise urban towns will go as they are going—to the dogs," said Senator T. V. Honan, Chairman of Ennis Urban Council, at a meeting of that body on Friday night.

He thought the proper method for an urban council would be to strike the poor rate and give the county council the amount collected from that rate. That was the only fair way, but, unfortunately, that was not how the law stood at the moment. The Council had to pay the County Council the full amount of the poor rate, and had to pay in respect of unoccupied houses, etc.

It was also decided to obtain the views of the Commissioners of Valuation on the matter.

EXPLOSIVES CARGO BLOWS UP

VICHY, Sunday.

The population of Helsinki was awakened this morning by a heavy explosion in the harbour, says a Helsinki despatch to the Vichy News Agency.

According to an official communiqué, the accident was due to a depth charge, which exploded on the deck of a ship, causing the vessel's whole cargo of explosives to blow up. Burning oil on the surface of the water set fire to two nearby ships. The explosion, which was audible several miles away, caused damage to houses in the harbour district and broke windows over a wide area. There are reported to be several casualties among sailors on board the ships involved. The cause of the accident is not revealed.—Reuter.

FIRST GENERAL MEETING

The first general meeting of the Writers, Actors, Artists and Musicians' Association was held in Jury's Hotel, Dublin, yesterday.

Mr. Sean O'Faolain, who inaugurated the Association, was unanimously elected President; Miss Mainie Jellett, Dr. J. F. Larchet, Messrs. Harold R. White "Jimmie" O'Dea, T. C. Murray, vice-presidents; and Mr. Maurice Walsh and Messrs. J. J. Bouch and J. Hanaghan, trustees.

Miss Shelah Richards and Messrs. F. J. McCormick, Denis O'Dea, Fred Johnston, Michael O'Higgins, Gabriel Fallon, T. St. John Barry, R. C. Forbes, W. O'Gorman, Frederick May, Joseph O'Neill and Sean O'Faolain were elected to the Central Executive Committee.

Mr. O'Faolain, who presided, asked that the energies of the Association be directed towards a drive by each group to increase their membership before Christmas and consolidate their organisation.

Mr. Cathal O'Shannon said that the final interpretation of the rules, etc., must be left in the hands of a central committee. The management of domestic affairs within each guild would, however, be in the hands of the committee of each guild. There were of necessity certain difficulties of organic connection between four such different groups as those forming the Association. It was a question of whether they should operate as four entirely independent groups, merely co-operating as a federation or an organisation binding them all together, so that united pressure of the four groups exercised through the central executive would bring about a better state of things for each group.

Moving a vote of thanks to Mr. O Faolain for his initiative in inaugurating the Association, Mr. Hanaghan said that Ireland would one day be proud that one of her sons had had the creative imagination to conceive the idea of such an Association, and had then the ability to give form to his dream. The Irish nation had plenty of creative imagination, but we were not equally endowed with the ability to transform this imagination into the things of the flesh; we lacked the materialistic conception of things, which was so essential. Many artists had been driven out of Ireland to find a living in other countries through lack of support and organisation.

A vote of thanks to Jimmie O'Dea and Harry O'Donovan for their generosity in organising the entertainment—"Variety Fair," to be presented at the Gaiety Theatre on next Sunday in aid of the Association, was passed. Well-known "stars" of the variety stage would appear on the programme, and it was expected that Micheal MacLiammoir would also assist.

From to-day road vehicles in Britain will be allowed to have two headlamps instead of one, states the Ministry of Home Security. Side-lamps are not affected.

PLUCKY WATERFORD BOYS

RESCUED MAN WHO FELL INTO RIVER

Oswald Robinson, second engineer of a collier, owes his life to the bravery and promptitude of two Waterford boys, who rescued him from drowning in the nick of time. Robinson was approaching his ship while it lay in Waterford just before darkness had fallen and missed his footing on the dock side and fell into the River Suir. Hearing the splash, John Connolly, 7 Jail street (16), and Patrick O'Loughlin, 25 Prior's Knock (16½), who happened to be in the vicinity, immediately investigated the occurrence. They first saw bubbles arise from where water had been disturbed and in a few seconds saw Robinson's head appear above the surface. He managed to seize an iron ladder running up the quay wall, but was apparently so exhausted as to be unable to maintain his grip. Just as he was going down again, Connolly, who leant far over the dock edge, managed to catch Robinson's sleeve. O'Loughlin in the meantime held on to Connolly's legs until he (Connolly) had secured a firm hold of the sailor. Both boys eventually succeeded in dragging the man up to safety of the jetty, from whence he was taken to a house in Sion Row. After first aid treatment was rendered by Sergeant Houlihan and Guard Casey, Robinson recovered, and expressed gratitude to his rescuers.

TO HELP GAELIC LEAGUE FUNDS

A successful aeridheacht was held yesterday in aid of the Language Fund, under the auspices of the Gaelic League, in the Iveagh Grounds, Harcourt street, Dublin. There was a large attendance, and the proceedings were conducted in Irish, under the direction of Mr. Labhras Mac Bradaigh and a committee. The programme included dancing, choral singing, harp and Uillean pipe music. An impressive feature was the performance of massed pipers' bands.

MARKET REPORTS AND PRICES

STOCK EXCHANGE FEATURES

THE STRENGTH OF GILT-EDGED

FROM OUR LONDON FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT.

BY far the most important feature of present-day Stock Markets is the strength of Gilt-edged securities, some of which, including the 3½ per cent. War Loan, have lately established fresh high record prices since 1937.

The further rise in this group was initiated by purchases for the banks, whose resources were again increased last month, so that the aggregate deposits of the eleven London clearing banks is now within about £3,000,000 of £3,000,000,000—needless to say, a new high record. This movement has been accompanied by another substantial addition to the investments, which at the end of last month amounted to £935,200,000, or £253,000,000 more than at the end of August, 1940.

To some extent, last month's increase was due to the last minute rush to buy 2½ per cent. National War Bonds before the "tap" was turned off; but the growth of their deposits compels the banks to increase their investments, and with stock still in short supply the effect of this buying upon market quotations is pronounced.

It is of interest to note that the various Government 3 per cent. Loans (leaving out the 3 per cent. Savings Bonds, which are still on "tap") are now quoted more or less substantially over par, so that none yields quite 3 per cent., if exception is made of Local Loans.

SHORTAGE OF STOCK

As stated on previous occasions, the market shortage of stock is by no means confined to the Gilt-edged section. The recent appreciation in various Brazilian securities, which was a leading feature of the more speculative groups would have been less pronounced had there been sufficient stock available to meet a demand that can only be described as moderate.

There is only a small floating supply of Home Rails, especially of the fixed charge issues, and it would be difficult to buy substantial lines of the leading Industrial Ordinary shares. There is one good reason for the present state of affairs, apart from the closing of the new issue market to all but Government loans. In the early summer of 1940, when Britain's war situation was undoubtedly serious, there was very little selling by real holders. People who held on then are not likely to sell now that the outlook is so much more hopeful, and certainly much better than it was about fifteen months ago.

A SOUTH AMERICAN REVIVAL

Many investors welcomed the revival in various South American Securities, for in this section many quotations for a long time had stood at little more than rubbish level.

The recovery in Brazilian issues was started by the announcement that substantial portions of the San Paulo 7 p.c. Coffee Loan are to be retired by means of monthly tenders, holders of the bonds being invited to state the price at which they are willing to sell for the purpose of cancellation. It can be assumed that the ability to redeem debt in this way points to an improvement in economic conditions in Brazil. This should help the railways, and consequently these Securities have also appreciated well. Those of the Great Western of Brazil Company were helped by the announcement of a coming payment of Debenture interest.

Another feature last week was the sharp appreciation in Argentine Rails on increased optimism about the course of the war, the belief that Argentina will benefit from Europe's need for food when the fighting stops and rising traffic receipts. Gains in the Ordinaries ranged up to nearly 3 points and in the Preferences and Debentures up to 5 points, and there was only a small reaction from the best in a few instances.

Mexican issues, too, have been firmer on negotiations for a loan by the U.S.A. Treasury to Mexico for the purpose mainly of stabilising the Mexican currency and making payments in connection with the expropriated oil properties previously owned by American companies. This may encourage the hope of an acceptable settlement in respect of the Mexican oil properties in which English capital is interested. Unfortunately, the Mexican Government hitherto has shown an almost complete disregard of the rights of foreign bondholders.

BREWERY PREFS.

Fairly high yields are obtainable from various Brewery Preference Shares, whose dividend requirements are well covered by profits. A return of 4¼ p.c., which is given by Courage and Co. 5 p.c. Redeemable 2nd Preference, may be considered small, but the interest is covered eight times. The shares are redeemable at 22/-, as against the current price of about 24/3, but they cannot be repaid before April 15, 1960.

Ind Coope 6½ p.c. Pref. gives less than 4½ p.c., the dividend in this case being covered six times by profits. Nearly 4⅞ p.c. can be expected from J. Walker 7 p.c., with the dividend covered nine times, while on Meux 5 p.c. the return is 4¾ p.c., the dividend being covered four times. About 4⅞ p.c. can be expected from Hammerton 5 p.c. Pref., the dividend upon which is covered five times, and from J. Eadie 5½ p.c., with interest covered 4½ times.

Beddington 5 p.c. gives 4⅞ p.c., but in this case the dividend is only covered three times, while about 4⅞ p.c. can be expected from Fremlins 7½ p.c. and Mann Crossman 5 p.c., the dividends being covered 2½ and four times respectively. Fully 5 p.c. is given by Peter Walker 7½ p.c., covered six times; 5¼ p.c. by Wenlock 5 p.c., covered 6½ times; and 5⅛ p.c. by R. Deuchar 5 p.c., the dividend upon which was covered four times. In respect of the margin available revenue, as represented by the Ordinary dividend, Wenlock 5 p.c. Pref. appears to be as good a selection as any of the above list.

HOPEFUL OUTLOOK

In some directions, probably the recent rise in prices has been rather too rapid, and, judged by the ordinary standard, there has been insufficient reason for it; but the atmosphere on the London Stock Exchange last week was very cheerful. It is regarded as unlikely that a dangerous position will be created in markets. Admittedly, there has been an increase of speculation in the recent buying, especially of securities likely to appreciate further after the war, but purely speculative business is difficult because it is no longer possible to contango stock from one account to another.

Assuming no very adverse development in the war from Britain's standpoint, there is no reason why the appreciation in Gilt-edged securities should not continue, for with the unceasing Government expenditure the resources of the banks will go on increasing, and with no big addition to market supplies the buying of Gilts, which, in effect, will be forced upon them, must raise prices considerably.

The buoyancy may help the Government to borrow on more favourable terms than hitherto, in which connection there were rumours last week of the coming issue of a ten-year loan bearing 2½ p.c. interest. Broadly speaking, Home Rails, Banking and Insurance Shares and Industrial equities would be strengthened by a further improvement in the Funds.

In brief, it can be said that the market outlook is distinctly hopeful.

THE MONEY MARKET

Money was plentiful in Lombard Street last week, a condition partly explained by the Bank Return, which showed that bankers' balances had risen to an unusually high level as a result of recent heavy Government disbursements. The weight of funds seeking employment was reflected in the Treasury Bill tender on Friday, total applications at £165,830,000 being £17,270,000 higher than in the preceding week.

Clearing banks have been keen buyers of bills. They have taken a fairly large quantity from discount houses, mainly October and November maturities, and on some days the demand was not fully satisfied, but on Saturday the turnover was small. Credit was in ample supply, with balances offered until to-morrow in outside quarters at ¾ per cent. against bonds.

SELECTIVE BIDDING IN WALL STREET

EXCHANGE CLOSES STEADY

NEW YORK, Saturday.

The Stock market to-day was sluggish and exceptionally narrow, with the cloudy war picture handicapping the week-end session. However, some selective bidding imparted well-mixed fractional gains, and the Farm Implements again strengthened as a group comparatively. The turnover totalled 230,000 shares. The opening was dull, with the majority unchanged. Shippings, Aircrafts and Rails were steady, the Rail division being aided by expectations of gains in traffic. The Steels were ominously neglected. Motor issues were very narrow, and did not react to the advance in the Buick prices. Montgomery Ward was backward on the six months' share earnings showing $1.27, compared with $1.58 for the corresponding period of 1940. Movements in the remaining pivotal stocks were insignificant. The market continued cautious, but the close was steady. Of the 496 stocks traded, 174 advanced, 140 declined, and 182 remained unchanged.

The Money market and open market discount rates unchanged. Sterling was unchanged throughout from the previous close at 4.03½.

MANCHESTER REVIEW

PROVISION TRADE STEADY

Firm conditions continue to prevail in all departments of the provision trade in Manchester, and there is little or no change in the general position, all commodities meeting with a steady demand. Some alterations have been announced by the Ministry of Food affecting butter, bacon and cheese distribution and prices, which will come into operation during September.

Ample releases of bacon have been well taken up, and consisted mainly of Irish, Canadian and United States meats of good quality. It is announced that there will be an increase of 6d. per cwt. in prices of bacon charged to wholesalers from September 22nd; wholesalers' margins to retailers will be 11/- instead of 11/6, the price now ruling. Hams and gammons were quietly steady. The Ministry also announced that there will be a Category C issue of streaks and heavy bellies for the cooking section of the trade, free of coupon. Wholesale prices will be 112/-, smoked 123/- per cwt., cooked 168/-, to operate as from September 15th. The butter ration continues to be well taken up on the full level of allowances. The first-hand price will be reduced 1/- to 142/- per cwt. from September 18th, but wholesalers' price will remain unchanged at 150/- per cwt. English refined lard is in very small compass, but supplies of American refined well taken up to cover the cooking fats ration. There is little change in the general position, short supplies of home produced continuing to prevail. Only light supplies of fat cattle were entered at Mode Wheel, the Government collecting centre under the control scheme. The quality fell short of recent standards, the majority being fat cows. The entries also included limited quantities of calves. Pigs were in rather better supply at the Water Street collecting centre, and the quality was of a satisfactory character.

Fowls, chickens and ducks sell at the controlled price of 1/7 per lb. Rabbits rather more plentiful, and in request at 8½d. per lb. (skin on), controlled. The season for Irish salmon is now virtually ended, and no quotations are available.

WAGES OF LARNE PORT WORKERS

Employees of the London, Midland and Scottish Railway Company—members of the National Union of Railwaymen—working at the port of Larne have secured an increase in wages of ½d. per hour for weekdays and of 1d. per hour for Sundays as a result of an agreement between the N.U.R. and the company.

The company have also agreed to a suggestion by the union that the minimum payment for these "spellsmen" should be increased, and that men called out for duty between 12 (midnight) and 6 a.m. shall be paid a minimum of four hours for each turn of booking on duty. A further six permanent "spellsmen" are to be employed with a guaranteed week of 48 hours, provided that in the event of work at Larne Harbour falling off so that there is not sufficient to justify it, the company will be at liberty to put these men back on the ordinary "spellsmen's" list.

MAN'S DEATH FROM SHOT WOUND

Francis Fitzpatrick (25), of 40 Oscar square, Fairbrothers Fields, Dublin, died in the Meath Hospital, Dublin, yesterday, from a revolver shot in the abdomen. It is understood that Fitzpatrick, who was a member of the Defence forces, was examining a revolver in the house of a friend on Saturday night when the charge exploded accidentally. The bullet entered his abdomen, and he was taken in the Fire Brigade Ambulance to the hospital, where he died some hours afterwards.

CRUISKEEN LAWN

By MYLES NA gCOPALEEN

There is this of the lady about me—that I would rather die than miss a "bargain." This insane fixation drives me to read through the entire column of miscellaneous articles offered for sale in a certain newspaper every evening, even if I happen to be in a hurry to the ballet. Things for which I have no possible use appeal to me strongly if they are cheap and in good condition. In practice I rarely, if ever, buy; nevertheless, my nightly task of reading the advertisements to make sure that I am missing nothing takes up a lot of my valuable time, and possibly deprives the nation of a fine play, essay or tract on rural sanitation. If I were a wealthy man I feel I would instruct my secretary to buy everything advertised every evening. I could then keep what I required and give the rest to the indigent and sick poor. Had I taken this step on August 29th last I would now own:—

Three vacuum cleaners, six tons firewood blocks, flat glass cases, satin walnut bed with coil spring mattress, builder's planks, also pair new garage gates, fancy hair-oil bottles, pedigree pram with canopy, sack scales, counter scales, copper piping, two typewriters, mangle, gramophone and records, heavy duty saw spindle, wardrobe, marble top; one thousand stock bricks and three window sills, large copper cylinders, perfect condition; go-car, commode, gas stove, gent's grey suit, gent's brown overcoat, large quantity sawdust, large Hornby clockwork railway, large mirror, four lawn mowers, mahogany shop fittings, navy blue overcoat, fit tall man; new solid oak wardrobe, heavy durable working trousers, one five-gallon and one three-gallon churn, pram and rug, four sewing machines, solid mahogany sideboard, stirrup pumps, Stott and Summerling coffee, milk and tea boilers; teasing machine, power or hand; ten tons turf, two arm-chairs, waterproof covers, ten iron beds.

It is a pity that there was not also on offer a large store, clean, dry, with railway siding, in which all those things might be kept.

YES.

Sir,—I wonder could any of your readers tell me on what date the Harvest Moon appears?

—Letter Evening Herald.

Right on my neck, ma'am, on the day following the date of a late night; I wear my hat on it.

HOME HINTS.

Why I don't know, but the Institute for Advanced Studies keeps sending me its suggestions for making life better and neater. The latest idea is metal buttons, which are attached to the garment with wire. "This obviates the use of thread," they say. I suppose it does. Any reader who is interested should write to the Institute direct. The address is Merrion square, Dublin.

CHIMNEY-POTS INCLUDED.

Roofing felt, 2/- per yard.

—Advert., Evening Mail.

Not everybody will agree that this is cheap. For myself, I am prepared to feel roofing at a cut rate of 1/3 a yard. Write to me for a quotation.

Many years ago I felt the roofing of every house in Merrion Square for a net contract figure of £169:5:0; I also held the contract for feeling the roof of Balbriggan Town Hall every year. I have in my time appraised with skilful fingertip some of the most historic slates in Ireland.

A skilled roof-feeler will make as much as 16/- a day on piece rates. In India skilled workmen feel roofs with their feet and can turn a pretty penny merely by running over the roof-tops. Here, the acuteness of the slant is against that; and it is no harm, because you cannot get good work without using the hands.

"Slate-of-hand" is a humorous expression I have often heard used by Irish roofmen.

FOOT-NOTE.

As regards the difficulties experienced by our railway companies in operating their locomotives on inferior coal, why not re-introduce the "obsolete" Joy valve-gear, at least on eight-coupled engines fitted with the Webb compound?

GARDA SERGEANT SENT FOR TRIAL

KILRUSH TRADERS' EVIDENCE

Sergeant Patrick C. J. Kelleher, Kilrush, County Clare, was charged in custody at Ennis with obtaining money from three Kilrush residents by false pretences, and was returned for trial, bail being allowed.

George Brew, merchant, Kilrush, gave evidence that on 17th June Sergeant Kelleher came into his shop with bank notes in his hand, and he asked witness had he any single pound notes. "What is wrong now," asked witness, to which the sergeant replied that he was making inquiries about counterfeit notes that were in circulation. Witness asked his wife to give the sergeant two notes, which she did. He seemed to examine and compare them with the notes that he had himself.

"I said," continued witness, 'is that all right, sergeant,' and he said 'could I have two more?' I asked my wife to give him two more notes, and she did. I then said again: 'Is that all right?' and he said: 'Perhaps you could let me have two more.' My wife produced the further two notes. As he left the shop he said he would be back shortly with them." Witness never saw him again until he saw him in court, and had not got back his £6.

Michael Crotty, a licensed trader, gave evidence that the sergeant called to him and asked had he heard about spurious notes which were in circulation. Witness replied that he had heard, and the sergeant asked had he any notes in the shop. Witness took £2 10s. in notes from the cash drawer, and, after noting their numbers, the sergeant folded them and said: "I will have to take these, Mick, but I will be back." Witness saw him no more, and he had not received the money.

Michael Lane, creamery manager, Kilrush, stated he was called out of a cinema on June 19 to interview Sergeant Kelleher, who was in plain clothes. The accused told him his brother, with whom he had been on the telephone, had three chests of tea for sale. There was, he added, also a possibility of getting white flour. The accused decided to buy the tea for the St. Vincent de Paul Society, and witness gave him a cheque for £12, which represented 80lbs. of tea at 3s. per lb. The accused said he was going by military lorry to Cork on the following day, and would bring back the tea. The cheque was subsequently cashed and debited to witness's account, but he had since not got either the tea or his money.

Sergeant J. Lawlor stated the sergeant told him, when asked to explain the circumstances, that he had got a tip from a detective from the Castle that there were bad notes in circulation, and he had taken the notes from Messrs. Crotty and Brew to examine them. He also said he had returned Crotty's money and was returning Brew's. He then fell ill.

Superintendent J. Dawson said that on 5th June he issued instructions in connection with spurious 10s. notes in circulation in Limerick city. On the 1st July he interviewed Sergeant Kelleher, who, on being cautioned, said:—"The three were done in good faith, and I can see they were done irregularly now. The tea would have come on only I got ill. That is all." In reply to questions by witness, he said he was in a position to return the money, but not now, as he had not it in his possession, but he would wire home for it. He preferred not to say what he had done with the money.

EVASION OF DANCE HALLS ACT

"I think the Dance Halls Act is being evaded all over the country," said District Justice Guy at Charlestown (Mayo), when an application was made for six all-night dances for the L.D.F. and L.S.F. He added that a proprietor of a hall had no legal right to sub-let his hall. To do so was a downright breach of the Act.

Mr. Mulligan, solicitor, who appeared for the applicant, asked if they had a right to hire the hall.

Justice—Decidedly no.

Mr. Mulligan—That will put an end to public dancing. In the present case no contract has been entered into, and I do not think in the circumstances we are outside the scope of the Act.

The application was granted.

When an application was made for 25 all-night dances, the Justice said it would be as well to grant 365. "I cannot understand how people are going to dance in the dark," he remarked.

COSMETICS FROM OATS

POSSIBILITIES IN INDUSTRY

If you told a modern "Miss" that the oatmeal bag with which her grandmother treated anything from sunburn to backache was still being served up in disguise in the chemist's shop she would hardly believe you. It is, however, and the properties of oats in the last few years have been more and more widely recognised, so that with the return of normal conditions to this country it is possible that the oat crop will find its way into a number of industries.

Experiment has shown that a pleasing cosmetic can be made from oats by reducing them to a fine, soft powder. This is used as a bath salt under a patent name in America. It is the base of preparations for soothing skin roughened by hard water or scorched by the sun, and of the "pack" that is used when Mademoiselle gets a "facial." Further uses in the field of cosmetics for this oat product will probably be found, and when it is remembered that around a million pounds is spent on cosmetics annually in this country we can see what the use of such oat products could mean to agriculture.

This fine powdered oat product has also preservative qualities. Potato chips dressed with it remained sweet several times as long as untreated chips. Freshly roasted coffee treated with it remained fresh for days longer than untreated coffee, and the treated article was even picked out as superior by judges who did not know that it had been treated. Lard treated with one-twentieth of its weight of oat flour and cold-stored for a month, was judged to be superior to untreated lard. Peanuts, almonds and other nuts used widely for domestic purposes will keep much better if treated with oat flour.

These are some of the cases in which the use of the oat flour has been proved, and others will, undoubtedly, be added as the experiments continue.

Another industrial product of oats is the solvent furfurol, which oat hulls yield in higher proportion than other natural sources (various seeds, bark, leaves, stalks of corn, etc.). Furfurol is used in the purification of resins, lubricating oils and various plastic materials. While it is not probable that the manufacture of these things will ever become a feature of Irish industry, it might at some stage be possible to manufacture this solvent here for export.

Motorists are familiar with sludge, which forms in the crank-case of cars and retards the efficiency of the engine. Furfurol removes the possibility of sludge forming when oil is treated with it, giving more efficient running, longer engine life and easier starting.

The feature of this product is that it is most economically produced from farm products, which in this country are available in almost unlimited quantity and easily transportable to a central plant. It may not be too much to hope that with the return of normal times the uses of oats outlined above will be the basis of a new industry, which seems to have vast possibilities, with benefit to the community as a whole.

TESTING NEW U.S. BATTLESHIP

An Associated Press Staff Correspondent aboard the United States ship North Carolina at sea describes the testing of the new warship's guns.

Standing on the windswept forecastle of this mighty battleship, he says, I saw and heard the greatest salvo fired from one ship in American naval history—a collective blast that sent more than 20,000lbs. of metal from 19 glistening grey guns.

The nine big guns of the Nelson or Rodney, if fired together, would send 22,620lbs. of shells.

The bow of the 35,000 ton vessel—one of the United States Navy's two newest and largest battleships—quivered sharply to port and starboard, the ship gave a slight list and settled quickly as the shells screamed into the night air.

Members of the crew and visitors sent up a cheer when they learned that the North Carolina had passed her tests. No one had known how she would react, because never had such a powerful salvo been fired from a single vessel.

A huge flame burst from the nine 16-inch guns trained over the port side, while short, sharp flames darted from the ten 5-inch dual purpose guns, and the crescendo of thunder seemed to carry beyond the horizon.

A few light bulbs burst and some light locker doors buckled under the pressure of waves that swept the ship from stem to stern.

MILITARY COURT

A Military Court, sitting in Collins Barracks, Dublin, on Saturday, fixed Thursday next as the date of the trial of Sean McCaughey, otherwise Sean Dunlop, believed to be a native of Belfast, charged with having on divers dates between June 30th and September 2nd, in the county of Dublin, unlawfully assaulted Stephen Hayes and imprisoned him, and with detaining him against his will.

UNREST IN SERBIA

PRIME MINISTER'S APPEAL

"The outrages in Serbia are leading to civil war," declared the Serbian Premier, General Neditch, in a broadcast from Belgrade last night.

"All Serbs are asked to do everything in their power to prevent a punitive expedition being sent to their country, which would thus be converted into a heap of ruins," he said.

"Serbs are asked to join the special detachment by which the Government, standing apart from all political parties, will destroy those who want to push Serbia over the precipice. Those who have gone astray are asked to abandon their weapons, leave the woods and return to their families.

"Serbs must let the great Powers settle their accounts by themselves. He who returns and has not made himself guilty of a crime will receive quarter. He who does not respond to this last appeal will be destroyed so that Serbia may live."—Reuter.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE

without Calomel—and you'll jump out of bed in the morning full of vim and vigour

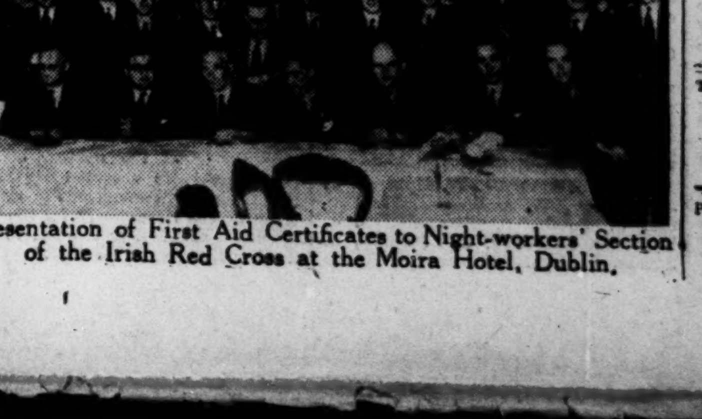

The liver should pour out two pints of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk, and the world looks punk.

Laxatives help a little, but a mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good old Carters Brand Little Liver Pills to get these two pints of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carters Brand Little Liver Pills. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 1/3 and 3/-
